Orva Day's runaway horse caused this terrible B&O train wreck.

Jimmy Fellows and Orva Day (right) owned a mill partnership and used a manufactured milling unit.

Orva Day's Blasted Horse

By Bob Carter

Orva Day and Jimmy Fellows were partners in a milling business. Their mill was housed in the old dark-colored two-story tile building on East Main St., near the railroad. The building is gone now, but when the manufactured Midget Marvel mill operated by Day and Fellows it was powered by a Buick automobile engine.

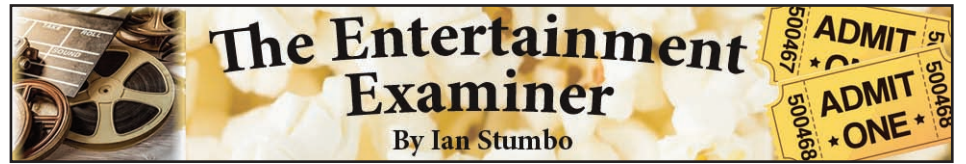

Orva Day had a really, really bad day n 1918 when his rather contrary horse got loose and headed south along the railroad tracks.

That was not too bad a situation as in that era run away horses were not all that uncommon. On this occasion, however, his fleeing steed met a north bound B&O train just south of town.

The train hit and killed Orva's trusty steed and the collision derailed the front trucks (wheels) of the locomotive.

That was not too bad if the engineer could have stopped rather quickly, however the engine hit the south siding switch and derailed the locomotive and wrescked the whole train. It was one heck of an expensive mess for the railroad. The line was blocked until the wreckage was cleared. No one was hurt except day's freedom seeking horse.

This was in an era where it was doubtful anyone carried horse insurance. It is unknown whether Orva Day may have wanted to switch to an automobile. His milling business partnership did not last long. The mill closed and Jimmy Fellows took up plumbing.

Space Jam: A New Legacy is a big disappointment compared to the original film, 1996's Space Jam starring basketball legend Michael Jordan.

This time, basketball superstar LeBron James takes over the mantle as a star athlete who gets taken in by a new artificial intelligence, along with his son. As the villain in this software named AI-G Rhythm (get it?), Don Cheadle (one of our finest actors) is miscast as this goofy program that controls everything.

Soon, James gets sucked into the world of the Looney Tunes. LeBron and Bugs Bunny have to essentially get the band back together for another game so the Tunes can win and get his son back.

This movie just does not work on many levels. First of all, the sequel is unnecessary. It's a little too technology based. The entire basketball game at the end feels like a video game instead of showing off James's awesome talents on the court.

The Looney Tunes are funny, however, Warner Brothers decided to use all of the properties they own to be spectators during the game. From Game of Thrones, to Stanley Ipkiss from The Mask, to Pennywise the Clown, all of these characters are reacting throughout the game. It's really a distraction from something that could have been enjoyable.

Space Jam: A New Legacy is a forgettable sequel to a movie that should have been a stand alone film. James is good enough but the whole plot is convoluted. The movie also has about five plus writers so that could have something to do with it. Bugs and the gang are fun to watch but the movie should have revolved around them, not everything else Warner Brothers owns.

Protecting the "Made in the USA" brand

By Senator Sherrod Brown

Ohioans look for the "Made in the USA" label, because they want their dollars to support our economy, and they know it means a quality product, made by American workers. I proudly wear suits made in the USA, and Connie and I drive Jeeps made here in Ohio.

Yet too often, Ohio businesses are forced to compete with companies and marketers that falsely claim their products are made in the USA, when in reality they're made in China.

That's why for years I've led bipartisan groups of colleagues to push the Federal Trade Commission to crack down on this fraud, and now they are finally taking action, with a new, updated rule to strengthen "Made in the USA" enforcement.

We know that fraud is all too common. A company that makes hockey pucks wrapped their products in American flags and promoted them as "The Only American Made Hockey Puck." A Silicon Valley mattress firm start-up marketed its mattresses as "designed and assembled in the USA" Two California-based companies marketed their gear to veterans and servicemembers, and put "American Made" tags in its products.

There's one problem — in these cases, the products were actually manufactured entirely in China. Yet under the previous Administration, the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) did nothing.

Now, the new FTC rule that takes effect next month will define a clear standard — any company that advertises a product as being "Made in the USA" must be able to prove that all, or virtually all, of it was made in America.

The rule also allows the FTC to enforce Made in USA requirements in e-commerce. The old, outdated rule only applied to physical tags and packaging — allowing companies to lie in online product descriptions. This will help us put a stop to that, and will also allow the FTC to enforce civil penalties for the first time.

Ohio manufacturers rely on the integrity of the "Made in the USA" brand, and should not be forced to compete with fraudulent foreign competitors who cheat. This new rule will protect Ohio businesses and Ohio workers, and will help ensure that when a product has a "Made in the USA" label, it actually means "Made in the USA."

St. Peter's 2021-'22 school year will begin with new leadership

St. Peter's Parish and School announced the hiring of Laurie McKeon as the institution's first Head of School. McKeon will work alongside Father John Miller, the new pastor for St. Peter's Parish. Both leaders are committed to the school's mission of graduating students who achieve academic excellence, practice Christian spirituality and are prepared to be of service to the world.

McKeon previously served as the Director of Strategic Initiatives at St. Joseph Catholic Academy, a spiritually, academically, and financially thriving school she helped form in Kenosha, Wisconsin. She will begin her tenure at St. Peter's in August. McKeon holds an MA in Nonprofit Administration from the Mendoza Graduate Business School at Notre Dame, a Juris Doctor from Notre Dame Law School and a BA of Arts from Notre Dame University.

Father Gregory Hite, pastor and local superintendent of St. Peter's Parish and School, retired from his decade of leadership by offering the position to McKeon after a five-month search conducted by St. Peter's newly-formed school governing board.

"McKeon's commitment to and experience with Catholic education as both an administrator and a consultant, her background in non-profit administration and as an attorney, and her continuing connection to the local community," according to board president, Dr. Cassandra Parente, "made her an excellent candidate for the position. Her clear vision for fostering St. Peter's mission and growth will have an enduring impact."

McKeon's local ties to St. Peter's Parish and School began over twenty years ago when her family joined the parish, and her children attended St. Peter's School from 1993-2003.

During her time in Mansfield, McKeon served as Board Chairperson for Richland County Children Services, helping to found and grow the Richland County Children's Services Auxiliary in 1996. Today, the organization continues to provide services such as the Christmas Project, the New Store, and the Backpack Project to support Richland County youth. She also served as a Richland County Foundation board member from 1999-2002.

"I'm delighted and humbled to be named the new Head of School for St. Peter's in Mansfield," McKeon said. "To serve the school, parish, and community that was so instrumental in forming my own family is more than serendipity or a happy coincidence. I truly believe that God puts us where we are meant to be, to do His will, live our purpose, and work for the greater good."

Laurie McKeon

McKeon will join St. Peter's new pastor Father John Miller in shepherding in a new era of leadership at the 175-year-old parish and school. According to McKeon, the school's leadership will be based on transformative collaboration: "I will do my very best to honor this opportunity, working closely with Fr. Miller, school leadership, and the entire school community to ensure that every St. Peter's student becomes his or her very best self, academically, spiritually, socially and morally. As a part of St. Peter's past, with firsthand knowledge of St. Peter's strong legacy, I look forward to being a part of St. Peter's bright and vibrant future."

The head of school position was created as part of the St. Peter's Strategic Plan, which also included forming a Governing Board to support and oversee the school's administration. This plan also focuses on building long-term financial stability for the school, improving academic opportunities, and focusing on traditional Catholic/Christian values.

St. Peter's Parish and School invites the community to meet the new pastor and head of school at AugustFest, a 21+ evening of live music, games of chance, food, and adult beverages at Spartan Fields on Saturday, Aug. 7, from 4-9 pm. Presale tickets are $10 and are available at mansfieldstpeters.org/august.

St. Peter's School was founded in 1868 as a ministry of St. Peter's Parish. The Catholic school provides educational opportunities for students from Montessori Pre-K through high school. It currently serves approximately 300 students from multiple faith and socioeconomic backgrounds.

Richland Public Health restarts neighborhood immunization clinics

Richland Public Health has announced the return of neighborhood immunization clinics. The program, which brings child and adult immunizations to locations throughout Richland County, was halted in March of 2020 due to coronavirus safety protocols.

Neighborhood Immunization Clinics offer an opportunity to bring individuals up-to-date on their recommended vaccinations. Public Health Nurses visit sites throughout Richland County that may be more convenient.

Public Health officials across the United States have indicated many children are behind on their routine immunizations due to the pandemic.

Clinics offer an opportunity to “catch-up” on needed childhood vaccinations.

In addition, some vaccinations are required for returning to school or college. Adult immunizations are available, but adults are asked to call first to make sure of vaccine availability.

A child’s up-to-date shot record and insurance card is required at Neighborhood Immunization Clinic locations. Richland Public Health participates in the federally-funded “Vaccines for Children” (VFC) program. There is no charge if unable to pay. Medicaid and Medicaid Managed Care Plans are accepted. Most private insurance companies are billed.

Children must be accompanied by a parent/legal guardian or another adult with written permission from the parent. For questions about Neighborhood Immunization Clinics and pricing for certain vaccines, call 419-774-4700.

COVID-19 vaccinations for ages 18 and older will also be available at Neighborhood Immunization sites. CDC recommends everyone 12 years and older should get a COVID-19 vaccination as widespread vaccination is a critical tool to help stop the pandemic. To find a COVID-19 vaccination site for children ages 12 through 17 years of age visit gettheshot.coronavirus.ohio.gov or book by phone at 1-833-4-ASK-ODH (1-833-427-5634).

Clinics are scheduled at:

Bellville/Jefferson Township Fire Station, 470 Main St., Bellville, 10 am to noon, Sept. 1

Lexington Library, 25 Lutz Ave., Lexington, 10 am to noon, July 21 and Sept. 22

Lucas Community Center, 252 W. Main St., Lucas, 10 am to noon, Sept. 8

Mifflin Township Fire Station, 2326 Park Avenue E., Madison area, 10 am to noon, Aug. 25

Shenandoah Christian Church, 5642 St. Rt. 13 N., Shenandoah, 9:30 am to noon, July 28, Sept. 15 and Nov. 17

Neighborhood Immunization Clinics start on July 21 and will continue until Dec. 15 barring a return to COVID-19 safety shutdowns announced by the Ohio Department of Health. Neighborhood Immunizations Clinics are partially funded by local tax dollars.

Immunizations are also available at the Richland Public Health Clinic, 555 Lexington Ave., Mansfield. Call 419-774-4700 to schedule an appointment.

H2Ohio informational meetings scheduled for Richland County farmers

Railroad museum fun for all levels of enthusiast

Article and Photos By Jenna Wolford

Last week I wrote about my trip to Bellevue, OH, and the Seneca Caverns. This week, I'll continue with my visit to Bellevue at The Mad River & NKP Railroad Museum, less than 10 minutes from the caverns.

The museum, which was opened in 1976 by The Mad River & NKP Railroad Society, aims to preserve, restore and maintain railroad history and railroad items for visitors of all ages to enjoy. This was very evident from the moment we stepped through the museum entrance. Immediately visitors are immersed in railroad history and can even see one of the train bells from the Lincoln Funeral train.

The museum's name came in-part from one of the earliest railroads that ran through Bellevue in 1839 — The Mad River & Lake Erie Railroad. The NKP represents the reporting mark for the Nickel Plate Road (New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Company) which ran through Bellevue from 1882 until 1964 when it merged with the Norfolk & Western Railway.

As our self-guided tour continued into the next room of the main museum building, a Wheeling & Lake Erie wooden caboose is one of the first exhibits we could climb aboard. The caboose was built in 1937 in Ironville, OH, and was the first piece of equipment the society acquired in 1973. This room also housed a 1929 Ford model AA, Railway Express Agency Mack Truck and a velocipede, among other railway artifacts.

Stepping outside but still under-roof is a

1939 silver dome train car, a 1939 stainless steel diner and a 1949 52-seat day coach which was converted to a 60-seat by Amtrak. Visitors are welcome to hop aboard and take a look as they walk through the entirety of the cars from end to end.

After spending some time in these fascinating train cars, we crossed the street to enter an entire train yard available for visitors to explore.

One of the fun features of this museum is that the majority of the content is actually housed inside the trains cars — making them an exhibit inside an exhibit.

The museum includes a great amount of signage explaining the engines' and cars' history and how each was obtained by the museum.

Other items of interest include track maintenance cars, uniforms, timetables, lanterns, china and silverware, locks, tickets and lanterns and light fixtures from as early as 1890. Also in the collection are Troop Sleeper #7407 which was used to transport troops heading to war during WWII, a B&O Watchman's Shanty, an 18-ton 1943 Plymouth Switcher which was built in nearby Plymouth, OH and a 1943 steam snowplow.

There were so many train cars and engines that I couldn't keep track of just how many we visited. We just enjoyed ourselves as we boarded each open museum piece and browsed the deep history each had to offer.

At the Curtice Depot, visitors can step into history as they examine what a train station would have looked like in years past. The depot was built in 1882 along the main line in Curtice, OH, south of Toledo. It was moved to the museum with the help of The Ohio National Guard in 1976.

The Mad River & NKP Railroad Society, which maintains the museum, is in a constant state of restoration, adding projects as the museum expands its collection.

One of the most current projects is the cosmetic restoration of the 1944 Nickel Plate Road Steam Locomotive No. 757. Fundraising continues for the $250,000 needed to relocate, cosmetically restore and display the locomotive. The relocation phase "Bring Back 757" has already been completed and contributions made in the future will be used for the restoration of the locomotive and the construction of a covered display site.

The 757's home terminal was Bellevue, where it and its sister engines were charged with operating manifest freight and freight trains between Chicago; Fort Wayne, Indiana; Conneaut, Ohio; and Buffalo, New York.

Retired in 1958 and stored in Bellevue throughout the 1960s, 757 was originally designated to be donated to the City of Bellevue long before the Mad River & NKP Railroad Museum was established. The city could not provide a display site for the locomotive after many years of failed attempts. In 1966, the newly created Railroad Museum of Pennsylvania saved the locomotive from an uncertain future by accepting its donation from the Norfolk & Western Railway.

In early 2017, the museums began negotiations to allow the 757 to return to Bellevue and in February 2019, the 757 traveled 500 miles by rail to reach the museum site.

Years of outside display at Strasburg took its toll on the locomotive but the cosmetic restoration will include a new sheet metal jacket for the boiler, a rebuilt cab structure, interior cab restoration, the running gear reassembled and fresh paint and lettering. The goal is to restore and preserve the 757 to an "in-service" appearance.

For more information on this project or to donate visit www.madrivermuseum.org.

The Mad River & NKP Railroad Museum is the kind of place that welcomes both those just wanting to experience the adventure of wandering through train cars and engines and those who truly want to spend a day (or more) learning the history.

There is so much information contained in the building and cars, someone could visit multiple times and probably still not get time to look at it all. It's truly a gem for railroad history buffs.

The museum, 253 Southwest St., Bellevue, is open daily 12-4 pm from Memorial Day through Labor Day and then on weekends only in September and October.

The admission fee is $10 for adults, $9 for seniors (60+) and $5 for children (5-12). Children five and under are free. Group tours are also available.

Upcoming events include a car show on Sept. 4 and Legends of Steam Dinner with Doyle McCormack on Sept. 18.

Visit www.madrivermuseum.org or call 419-483-2222 for more information.

Cecil Flynn

BELLVILLE — Cecil Flynn passed away June 22, 2021. He was born on Dec. 3, 1936 and shared a birthday with his wife, Patricia Carol Schlosser Flynn, who preceded him in death on July 26, 2020 and was the love of his life. They were married 63 years. Their headstone was the first to be placed in the new addition of the cemetery.

An open house celebration will be held Saturday, July 24, from noon to 3 pm at the Legion Park in Bellville.

Donors needed during blood shortage

While donors across the country have rolled up a sleeve to give this summer, the need for blood and platelets remains crucial for patients relying on lifesaving transfusions. The American Red Cross continues to experience a severe blood shortage and donors of all blood types – especially type O and those giving platelets – are urged to make an appointment to give now.

Right now, the Red Cross needs to collect more than 1,000 additional blood donations each day to meet current demand as hospitals respond to an unusually high number of traumas and emergency room visits, organ transplants and elective surgeries.

To thank donors who help refuel the blood and platelet supply this month, all who come to give July 7–31 will receive a $10 Amazon.com gift card via email and will also receive automatic entry for a chance to win gas for a year (a $5,000 value). More information and details are available at rcblood.org/fuel.

Also, all those who come to donate throughout the entire month of July will be automatically entered for a chance to win a trip for four to Cedar Point or Knott's Berry Farm. To learn more, visit rcblood.org/CedarFair.

Donors who give now will help stock the shelves for the rest of the summer season. Schedule an appointment to give blood or platelets by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting RedCrossBlood.org, calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or enabling the Blood Donor Skill on any Alexa Echo device.

In most cases, those who have received a COVID-19 vaccine can donate. However, knowing the name of the manufacturer of the vaccine they received is important in determining donation eligibility.

Upcoming blood donation opportunities:
 Wednesday, July 21, 1– 7 pm, Richland Mall RSMO, 2209 Richland Mall, Ontario
 Tuesday, July 27, noon to 5 pm, Berean Baptist, 2145 Middle Bellville Rd., Mansfield
 Wednesday, July 28, 10 am to 8 pm, Richland Mall, 2209 Richland Mall, Ontario
 Thursday, July 29, 9 am to 3 pm, Area Agency on Aging, 2131 Park Avenue West, Ontario and 3–8 pm, Community Building, 21555 Pealer Mill Rd., Butler

THE OHIO BIRD SANCTUARY broke ground for a new classroom that will be built in the trees. Instead of cutting a ribbon, a small saw was given to board members, staff and friends to celebrate the new project July 19. This month, Ohio Bird Sanctuary will expand its accessibility to the trails through the construction of an accessible treehouse classroom and forest trail. The classroom will be constructed by the professionals of Nelson Treehouse & Supply (Animal Planet's Treehouse Masters) and local service groups and volunteers. It will be nestled between a beech tree and a sycamore tree, creating a space for learning, observation and a bird's eye view of the forest. The classroom will be accessible by a bridge that will start at ground level, but as the terrain descends into the forest, the visitors rise into the treetops. Director Gail Laux said 50 percent of visitors come from two hours away to visit. The project will take about four weeks and we will be have open house in late August or early September.

RCYSUC makes activities and programs available to youth

The Richland County Youth Substance Use Coalition (RCYSUC) wants youth, parents, and other caretakers to know of all the activities and programs that are available for kids to do this summer.

"The coalition's Data & Evaluation Committee thought it would be a good idea to do an analysis of current and upcoming programs and activities," said Gulpinder Deol, Health Educator at Richland Public Health. "Kids are out for summer and have a lot of free time on their hands. We want them to have fun and also promote the various businesses and organizations in our community."

The full list includes programs and activities from places like the Friendly House, Mansfield YMCA, Mansfield Art Center, Mid-Ohio Sports Car Course, Warren Rupp Observatory and much more.

Check out the full list to see what's available at https://docs.google.com/document/d/1_X7bNHsfOH0JJvi6KzBTGAB77dURYz7JSjiMfLzR018/edit.

Dr. Joseph Bocka, a member of the coalition added the importance of exercise. "Exercise is a proven way for teens to improve their memory, decrease the risk of diabetes, heart attack stroke, addiction, and high blood pressure, decrease anxiety, and improve sleep," he said.

RCYSUC consists of many local community partners all working towards the same mission: To empower Richland County youth, families and the community to reduce youth substance use through education, intervention and prevention.

Free arts integration professional development available for teachers

The Mansfield Partners in Education Team, comprised of the Renaissance Performing Arts Association, the Mansfield Art Center, and Mansfield City Schools, will host a two-day professional development workshop on arts integration for elementary and intermediate educators, and administrators on July 29-30, 2021 in the Pioneer CTC Performing Arts classroom, located at the Renaissance's Theatre 166 venue. The registration fee of $125 for the workshop has been covered for all participants through the generous support of the Ohio Arts Council and Charles P. Hahn, CFP.

Kennedy Center teaching artist Randy Barron will lead workshops entitled, "Math on the Move" for teachers serving students in grades K-2; and for those teaching students in grades 3-8. Through dance and creative movement activities, students become kinesthetically and visually engaged in creating number sense and developing an understanding of the important ideas underlying all of mathematics. In this activity-focused workshop, Mr. Barron leads teachers in a set of lessons that help students build their own mathematical understanding while making dances. Participants learn and practice the basic elements of dance and choreography in order to create movement solutions to mathematical problems. Teachers will leave with a comprehensive set of tools for immediate use in teaching mathematics and assessing student creative products, while helping students' brains develop through movement.

Additionally, Mr. Barron will lead his "BEST Behaviors" Workshop, a skill-building workshop based in creative dance strategies. The workshop includes techniques for moving students from place to place, developing body and voice self-control, and managing space in the classroom. Using fun, fast-paced, and immediately useful activities make the workshop fly by, and teachers will leave with step-by-step instructions for making the classroom a safe and creative space for students to construct and demonstrate understanding through movement.

Primary grade workshops will be presented from 8:30 am until 11:30 am on both days for kindergarten through 2nd grade teachers; with intermediate grade workshops held from 12:30 pm until 3:30 pm for third through eighth grade teachers. Full schedule and registration is available at <https://bit.ly/K-8ArtsIntegration>.

Contact hour verification for CEUs are available for participants. For more information, call 419-522-2726 ext. 252 or email maddie@mansfieldtickets.com.

Randy Barron has classroom teaching experience dating back to 1980, and he has been a Kennedy Center Teaching Artist since 1995. Randy has led hundreds of professional development events for teachers and teaching artists, in forty US States, as well as in Singapore.
