New plan will be based upon what students need for success

Ontario Local Schools has announced it is joining hundreds of school districts statewide to support the Fair Trade Funding Plan, as introduced in the Ohio House as Sub. H.B. 305 and the Ohio Senate as S.B. 376, and is urging lawmakers to seize this moment to make history for Ohio's K-12 public schools.

The plan is an improved and comprehensive bipartisan remake of Ohio's current funding formula. It is also the product of three years of concentrated volunteer efforts by a group of active school superintendents and treasurers under the leadership of state representatives Bob Cupp (R-Lima), John Patterson (D-Jefferson) and Gary Scherer (R-Circleville). Senators Peggy Lehner (R-Kettering) and Vernon Sykes (D-Akron) introduced Senate Bill 376 as a companion bill to the House version. Ontario Local Schools says it is grateful for their leadership.

Ontario Local Schools Superintendent Lisa Carmichael says the plan focuses on what students need to ensure high-quality education. She added that it also gives weight to supporting classroom instruction, as well as making sure Ohio public school students can learn in a safe and secure environment while having access to state-of-the-art technology.

Superintendent Carmichael said, "This bipartisan plan would make a very positive difference in funding for Ontario Local Schools, especially since it begins the process of eliminating the gain caps that have penalized our school district for years."

According to Ontario Local Schools Treasurer Randy Harvey, the current funding system is broken and unconstitutional. It's provisions have not objectively determined a relationship to cost or need.

Harvey stated "H.B. 305 is a predictable and reliable funding model that shifts the burden of funding schools away from local property tax owners to the state. This reliable funding stream means less need to go back to local taxpayers just to fund the basic operations. Although it will not eliminate the need for local levies, it will stabilize local property tax rates in Ontario Local Schools and slow the frequency with which districts like ours go to the voters."

Superintendent Carmichael and treasurer Harvey said they believe the plan is fair for students and taxpayers, eliminates arbitrary caps on funding increases, reduces artificial guarantees and respects local control.

In addition to the Ontario Local School district and hundreds of other districts across Ohio, four of Ohio's most influential and prestigious educational organizations also declared their support for the Fair School Funding Plan: Ohio Association of Schools Business Officials, Buckeye Association of Schools Administrators, Ohio School Board Association, Ohio Federation of Teachers Ohio Educational Association.

Richland Public Health issues top winter driving tip — Slow Down!

Richland County residents received a couple inches of snow and cold temperatures as a reminder that winter has arrived early. Richland Public Health and the Ohio State Highway Patrol are reminding all county residents to get ready for winter driving season.

The leading cause of death during winter storms is motor vehicle crashes. Richland Public Health has prepared a "Winter Safety Tips" page that includes information reminding motorists of winter driving vehicle preparations, and then how to drive on snow and ice if you have to. It's available by clicking on the link on the main page at www.richlandhealth.org or by calling 419-774-4726.

"The first snow of the year can often cause major problems on the road as people adjust to the poor driving conditions," says Reed Richmond, Health Educator at Richland Public Health and AARP Senior Driver Safety Program coordinator.

By Ian Stumbo

Hillbilly Elegy is based on the memoirs of J.D. Vance and his life growing up with an addicted mother as he eventually overcame the odds and got admitted to Yale Law School. Directed by Ron Howard, this movie is set in Middletown, Ohio.

Vance is played both in the past and present as we see him having to care for his drug addicted mother Bev played by Amy Adams. The movie also flashes back to his upbringing where Bev starts her addiction while working as a nurse in the hospital. Her mother, called Mamaw, is played by Glenn Close who steals every scene she is in. She really becomes this character through the glasses and makeup.

Vance's story is interesting and Howard's direction is good in terms of explaining where this movie is set and he gives the viewer a good sense of time and place as it flashes between the late 90s and 2011.

Both Adams and Close are the reasons to watch this movie. The fact that neither has won Oscars yet after being nominated multiple times is a crime and both do very fine work here. The problem is that the movie is just not that memorable after it is over. It's one of those movies you may just watch one time and there are points it feels like there is not enough story for its two hour run-time.

Hillbilly Elegy really came into this season as a movie that was getting a great deal of Oscar buzz because of the people involved.

However, having so many mixed reviews it's not sure where the movie may end up. The performances are great and the story is certainly watchable, it just doesn't grab you and pull you in like it possibly could. Certainly not a bad film but not a top 10 one either. Hillbilly Elegy is now available to stream on Netflix.

READERS' FORUM

Dear Governor DeWine, President Obhof, and Speaker Cupp:

Our organizations represent superintendents, school board members, treasurers and other school business officials responsible for the leadership and management of Ohio's traditional public school districts, career centers and educational service centers (ESCs).

We write to express our profound disappointment by the actions of the General Assembly to overhaul the Educational Choice (EdChoice) voucher program without debate, public input or advanced notice.

The changes, contained in Senate Bill (SB) 89, were unveiled and passed by both a conference committee and the Senate on the same day and then by the House the following day. The topic of EdChoice has always been a matter of public interest and yet, the legislature failed to provide a single opportunity for the public to voice its support, opposition, or otherwise on the plan.

While we appreciate the reduction in the overall number of buildings on the eligibility list, SB 89's shortcomings cannot be ignored. For example, 110 of the 473 buildings designated EdChoice eligible under SB 89 received an A, B or C on their 2018-19 state report card, representing 23% of the total eligible buildings.

Forty-three of the 473 buildings, or 9%, were never on the eligibility list but suddenly will become EdChoice eligible under the bill. There can be no possible policy rationale for these decisions.

The plan also unjustifiably increases the performance index threshold from 10% to 20%. This arbitrary change does nothing other than add more school buildings to the eligibility list. These new school buildings will now have the impossible task of explaining to their community and the students they serve that their school building is "failing."

The outcome will also have a detrimental impact on school budgets amid state revenue cuts, declining local revenues, and mounting pandemic costs. Locally voted tax dollars will continue to be siphoned away from students in public schools and sent to private schools without regard for their educational quality.

This threatens districts' abilities to serve and provide opportunities for their remaining students - students who have chosen to attend their public schools - and jeopardizes the quality of their educational experiences. If the state continues to believe that Ohio should have such a policy, then we firmly believe that the state should bear the full cost of funding the program - not school districts.

We fear passage of this bill means the General Assembly will not meaningfully address the issues surrounding EdChoice, like adequately measuring the quality of participating nonpublic schools, instituting reasonable accountability measures, or ensuring students taking a voucher take the same state tests as their public school counterparts. Issues like these deserve to be debated in an open forum where all sides of the issue can be heard, and we can ensure that students are at the center of the discussion.

We hope you will take these issues into consideration in future legislation and in other actions taken by the State of Ohio.

Sincerely,
R. Kirk Hamilton, BASA Executive Director
Richard C. Lewis, OSBA Chief Executive Officer
James Rowan, OASBO Executive Director

Beef Ramen

Ingredients

- 1 lb. sirloin roast, cut into small thin strips (or 1 lb shaved beef)
- 2 tbsp. oil (to cook beef in)
- 2 tbsp. minced garlic (or finely chopped)
- 2 tbsp. minced ginger
- 1 tbsp. chili pepper paste (use less/more depending on the amount of heat you want)
- 2 tsp. fish sauce
- Rice or ramen noodles, prepared and ready to add (boil these while cooking the meat)
- 2- 32 oz boxes beef broth

Optional Marinade (prepared at least 2-4 hrs before)

- 1/4 cup soy sauce
- 1 tbsp. minced ginger and garlic
- 1 tbsp. Mirin seasoning
- 2 Tbsp, sesame oil

Toppings

- Bok Choy, chopped
- Carrots (I used chopstick because of easy prep)
- Bean sprouts
- Mushrooms, sliced thin
- Scallions, sliced
- Hard boiled egg
- Cilantro
- Crushed red pepper flakes (for some extra heat)

Combine all these ingredients in a bag and add the cut meat (If using shaved meat only marinate 1-2 hrs)

Instructions

In a small stockpot pan, add the oil and heat for 1 minute. Add the beef and cook 5-10 minutes depending on how thick the meat is. It should be fairly thin to cook quickly. You don't want to overcook because it will become tough. Once the meat is almost cooked, remove from pot and set aside, leaving any liquid in the pot for the next step. If you have to add a bit more oil, do so. Add the garlic, ginger and chili paste to the pot and stir around a few times. You don't want to cook it very long. Add the broth and fish sauce and bring to a boil. You are ready to assemble. You can prep all of this the night before and leave it ready to go once you cook your meat and heat the broth, it will be a quick dinner to put together.

Ashland Eagle Riders in conjunction with The Fraternal Order of Eagles makes gift to support Hospice of NCO

Hospice of North Central Ohio's Tina Marie Heibert and Ralph Tomassi met with Steve Bates president of Ashland Eagle Riders to accept a check in the amount of $4,800 from both the Ashland Eagle Riders and The Fraternal Order of Eagles #2178 in Ashland. This is the tenth consecutive year that the Eagles Club has held annual events to raise funds in support of HNCO. Steve said on the behalf of the Eagles organization, "We are people helping people. We were able to raise $2,800 through some of our groups usual fundraisers and the rest came through a grant from the Ohio State Eagles

Charity Fund."

Ralph Tomassi, HNCO Chief Development Officer/Senior Administrator stated: "It's a real source of encouragement to our caregivers, chaplains and social workers to know that local organizations like The Ashland Eagles Club continue to focus their efforts on raising funds in support of local non-profits like HNCO during these challenging times".

•Richland Public Health says Slow Down!

-dinator. "If you have to drive, the most important thing to remember is drive slower and show adequate caution."

Richmond added that allowing more distance to stop is also essential. "People need to remember that even if you have four-wheel or all-wheel drive that doesn't translate to quicker stopping. In fact, because of their added weight, pickup trucks and SUVs may need longer to stop on ice or snow than a passenger car. No matter what you drive, leave plenty of distance between you and other vehicles."

Richmond added a few quick tips from the AARP Driver Safety workbook:

- Make sure your tires have adequate tread
- Make sure your car is ready for winter

with proper level of anti-freeze

•Keep windows and headlights free of snow and ice

•Reduce speed and increase following distance

•Remember bridges and shaded areas ice first and retain ice longer than roadways

•Know that an icy road is more slippery at 32° than at lower temperatures

Richmond says the two most important safety measures apply to driving at any time of the year: always wear your seat belt and never drive after drinking alcohol.

Pupils at Stingel Elementary School in Ontario are re-cycling Campbell soup labels for audio-visual equipment and athletic equipment this fall. They hope to redeem the labels for cassette tape recorders, record players, tape cassettes and other items to benefit the entire school.

All classes are involved and the grade level that brings in the largest number of labels will be rewarded with a free movie and other prizes. The individual pupil bringing in the largest number of labels will also receive a prize.

A tape recorder, for example, requires 4,900 labels. The collection of labels will continue until Christmas vacation.

Alzheimer's caregiver support groups can be a "lifeline" during the pandemic

It's the club no one wants to join.

Being an Alzheimer's caregiver can be difficult and most people do not understand unless you have been one. That's where support groups come in. As MaryJo Moorhead said, "You can sit with a group of people and there is nothing you can say or do that someone hasn't said before or done before."

That is the fabric of an Alzheimer's caregiver support group. No judgement. One day everyone is laughing because your loved one has done something incredibly funny. The next time, a box of tissues is being passed around the room.

The Alzheimer's Association Northwest Ohio Chapter offers close to 20 Alzheimer's caregiver support groups to help local caregivers cope with the emotions and skills of being a caregiver. The great thing about the support groups is that they are built around the needs of the caregiver. Family members can use the time to exercise emotional self-care.

"Caregiver support groups can be a lifeline during the pandemic," said Pamela Myers, Program Director for the Northwest Ohio Alzheimer's Association. "Caregivers may be receiving less outside assistance to help with the care of their loved one - and that adds to their stress. Sharing experiences can help decrease stress and isolation that caregivers are feeling."

Because of the pandemic, the Northwest Ohio Alzheimer's Chapter has been experimenting with different types of caregiver support. A new Adult Children's Caregiver Support Group, which meets the second and fourth Monday every month at 6:30 pm, was started. That is in addition to the chapter offering support groups to choose from five days a week and in the mornings and evenings.

All support groups are led by trained volunteers. Many are former caregivers. Because of the pandemic, some support groups meet over the telephone. Others use videoconferencing. The Northwest Ohio Chapter makes care and support available to 32,000 individuals living with Alzheimer's disease and 96,000 unpaid caregivers.

Myers said the Association is trying to be helpful to as many people as possible. "Caregiving for a loved one is at times a burden; other times a gift. But in all times, as a caregiver, you need to carve out time to care for yourself."

Moorhead said when she first started attending a support group "I was angry. There tends to be one person in the family who does the caregiving and I was the one person." While she had two living siblings at the time, she said she did not understand how she became the primary caregiver for their mother. "Do you not understand you are sacrificing me? How is my life not as important as yours?" she said she often thought.

The support group helped her get over those feelings. She said she often finds that people still attend, even after their loved one has passed, because they hope to make the care journey smoother for others. The bond built in a support group is often hard to break.

Dennis P. Moriarty said, "I find the virtual meetings very easy to join, and I really appreciate the email reminders. I am always taking notes during the education programs. Sometimes caregiving becomes hard as outside stress increases. They remind me that in order for me to be helpful to my wife, I have to take care of myself and take breaks, even if it is only for five minutes at a time."

In addition to attending a support group, Moriarty said he has attended Alzheimer's educational programs and used the association's 24/7 Helpline, which is 800-272-3900.

"Trying to deal with a problem alone is a losing situation. Knowing that the Alzheimer's Association is just a phone call away is just like when you tell your loved one and children 'If you need me, I am only a call away.'" Anytime that you call the Alzheimer's Association, there is always a listening ear on the other end, and they may not always have an answer right away, but they always know where to find it."

To learn more about the chapter's support groups, visit https://www.alz.org/nw-ohio/helping\_you/caregiver\_support\_groups or call the helpline at 800-272-3900.

The association is the leading voluntary health organization in Alzheimer's care, support and research. Visit www.alz.org for more information.

This Week's Christmas Decor Inspiration

Renaissance offers new REN-spiration classroom holiday sessions

The Renaissance Theatre will offer a new series of REN-spiration Classroom sessions beginning the week of Dec. 13. The series will feature classes that are formatted as a two-week series of offerings, with participants meeting once a week for two weeks.

Class sessions are scheduled during times that allow families the opportunity to explore the arts while accommodating holiday activities. The REN-spiration Classroom provides a variety of educational theatre activities designed with creativity in mind. The series, coordinated by Renaissance Resident Teaching Artist Dauphne Maloney, expanded its offerings to the community in a series of live "classes," originally in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. Based upon the popularity, the Ren's Education Department has continued with new series of classes for the fall and into the winter.

Maloney hopes that the availability of online educational resources will offer opportunities to students, educators and parents. "We continue to receive such a positive response to our arts education offerings as our students, teachers and educators have moved forward into the school year. The arts-focused REN-Spiration Classroom Initiative has served young people from throughout the North Central Ohio region and beyond, as they meet for arts-focused activities through our 'virtual classroom'. By offering classes for students of a variety of ages, and accommodating school schedules, we've seen our online students return to attend additional class sessions.

Our latest edition, with its shorter timeframe and holiday-themed materials, is just the thing to help ring in this festive season."

Sessions offer free classes for a variety of students from three years of age through twelfth grade.

Parents and educators can visit www.rentickets.org/ren-spiration to register for a variety of sessions. Registration is free, and each session has a limited number of spots available. Information regarding any needed materials will be provided by Maloney prior to class sessions. All the material provided can be used by educators, as well as parents and students. Material for the website will be updated, and expanded upon, regularly to include new material and resources.
