Madison eighth grade students participate in Reality Store

Photos and Article By Traci Little

The eighth graders at Madison Middle School participated in a Reality Store on Tuesday, May 10, in the gymnasium.

Students receive their occupations, family size and income on a sheet of paper prior to the event. The paper had their check amount at the top, for example $2,629.75. It told them what their occupation was, such as "congratulations, you are a Tool and Die Maker." It told them what degree they had, their yearly salary, their gross monthly salary, how much was taken out for taxes, and their take home pay. It also told them if they had any children: "You are the proud parent of two children: 18-month-old girl and 3-year-old girl."

Originally coordinated by Ohio College Tech Prep, the Reality Store gives students an important glimpse of the future in a fun and exciting way.

"The main goal of the Reality Store is to make students aware of the need to be financially savvy, to set goals and make decisions to better their lives, and to create a plan for their education and career attainment," said Jenni Paramore of Directions Credit Union. Jenni is the Community Outreach Education Manager.

The first stop for the students was to deposit their "paycheck" at one of the banking tables, paying their credit card debt and student loan payment (for those who have degrees). Representatives from Park National Bank, Mechanics Bank and Directions Credit Union ran the bank tables.

After that, it was time to begin their journey of shopping for groceries, paying for daycare, housing, transportation, utilities, insurance, entertainment and more. There are 11 career clusters from which the occupations were pulled: agriculture and food services; arts, design, entertainment, sports, and media; business management and financial services; construction; education; health sciences; human services; information technology; law and public safety; manufacturing and transportation; and random life happens jobs.

During the Reality Store, students must purchase the necessary items to support their family for a month based on the salary and family size they receive at the start of the activity. Students become

Mont Whitney's Lexington Mobile Station

By Bob Carter

When a great 1929 fire wiped out the north side of West Main Street from the town square to the present day Lexington Village Hall, a large vacant lot was left.

The Hart Bros. saw an opportunity to build a gas station on the busy U.S. Route 42, which passed through the town. It was the main road between Cleveland and Columbus, thus the heavy traffic.

Mont Whitney moved from Cardington to Lexington in 1933 to run the new station, he quickly became one of the best known men in town.

There was also a restaurant in one end of the building ran by Glades Logan. Whitney tried to get her out because her customers often parked and sometimes blocked the spaces for the garage and gas pumps.

A complete automobile service was offered from oil changes to tires and minor engine repairs.

Due to the bend in the road at the bottom of Delaware Street, there were some very memorable accidents. One was a semi truck which upset and nearly took out the gas pumps in 1951. A second was a near disaster in 1959 when a semi went through a guard rail, went between two trees, knocked the corner off a restaurant next door and crashed through the side of the station. No one was killed which was a wonder.

During World War II, the station pay phone had an attachment that provided for AT&T telegraph service so people could wire money, send messages and also receive messages to be delivered locally. It sometimes fell to Whitney's young sons to deliver these telegrams.

Lloyd, the oldest, had to deliver one of these to the William Caster Family from the government, telling them that their son Robert had been killed. That was a tough one to do. The Lexington Robert Caster Post of the VFW was named in his honor.

It fell to young Robert Whitney to deliver one to the Logan Family home at the bottom of Church Street. Whitney, now the well known attorney who has served more than 58 years on the Lexington Board of Education, often as president, recalled that when Mrs. Logan saw what he had in his hand, she knew it contained what every mother feared. She broke down and cried tears of agony. She knew without reading it that her son Carson Logan had been killed. Bob said he delivered the telegram, got back on his bicycle and went straight home. There are events in everyone's life they never forget.

MONT WHITNEY in a pose photograph with son, Lloyd, in the car as he explains the value of his motor oil.

Bob's father ran the Mobile station from 1933 to 1956. Countless are the number of trips from the gas pumps to the cash register he made. How many windshields were cleaned? How many people did he thank for their business? Mont Whitney was a very well liked person and part of the fabric of Lexington.

The old Mobile station was torn down years ago and replaced by a new combination fuel and light grocery store.

Hidden Acres connects customers to local farmers

Photos and Article By Traci Little

Life is an adventure for Zach and Kristin Herzberger! They have a history of farming in their blood and have always known they wanted to own a farm one day. They are the type of down to earth people that could easily become your new best friend. The heart of community can easily be seen through their friendly smiles and comfortable demeanor.

After Zach finished his service in the U.S. Navy, they talked about where they would like to live. Ideas were thrown around about out west, or even going south, but they both decided to settle on the Ohio countryside.

In 2014, Zach found a job in Bucyrus, and they purchased a 33-acre farm in Mansfield. The Herzbergers decided to go the route of sustainable farming with pastured livestock. By using the God-given patterns of nature, it becomes a very minimalist form of farming. This holistic approach is much more personal, forming a connection between farmer and consumer. Learning as they go, Zach uses his 4-H knowledge from his early years working on a sheep farm in Indiana. Kristin grew up on a small acreage farm in Pennsylvania.

They raise beef cattle and broiler chickens, rotating livestock throughout the pastures.

This year, the Herzbergers added Belted Galloways cows, as this breed is known for doing well on grass-fed operations.

The Herzbergers work with other agencies and businesses and connect with their community through a local marketplace. Programs such as the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Natural Resource Conservation Service helps fund infrastructure ventures. A grant was received for equipment through the Farmer Veteran Coalition.

The Herzbergers put in a lot of personal sweat and tears into making their vision a reality. Most of the fences and buildings on the property they did themselves. They got their children on board, and it has become a family affair.

With six growing children, and the seventh on the way in just a few weeks, life is never dull.

"If my children ever say they are bored, I have a whole list of things ready for them to help with," Kristin laughed. Zach and Kristin homeschool and also run the Mansfield Classical Academy (<https://mansfieldclassicalacademy.square.site/>).

Zach and Kristin are part of many different things like their online marketplace that launched in 2020. After the pandemic shut down farmers markets. This allows customers to pick and choose local products to buy like meat, produce, soaps, flowers and more.

What especially intrigued me was they host farm to table dinners twice a year. They serve their own food, and also baked goods and drinks from other local farmers. This is the perfect way to bring the community together.

"We love to work together and support one another," Kristin said. Mark your calendar if you would like to attend this one-of-a-kind, farm-to-table meal. Drinks and appetizers begin at 6 pm on Sunday, May 22. From pastured poultry to grass fed beef dishes over several courses, including dessert, you will get a sampling of food and drink sure to please your palate.

They also host workshops such as their Spring Herb Wreath Workshop that was held last weekend. Guests were provided the materials to make their own dried herb and lavender wreath. Recipes and instructions were given on how to use these herbs to prepare some of The Hidden Acres grass fed meat products. All participants were given a fresh herb to take home from Sugar Baby Patch and Garden.

The Hidden Acres farm is located in Mansfield at 2080 Mansfield Lucas Rd. You can find them online at <https://www.thehiddenacres.com/> or on facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/thehiddenacresmansfield>.

Village Roots unique shopping experiences continue this summer

By Traci Little

Village Roots is an event-style shopping experience and monthly marketplace filled with quality, curated products from over 75 Ohio Artisans. The shop is open the first two full weekends of each month (Thursday through Sunday). They had a wonderful turnout for Mother's Day weekend, May 5-8 and some more fun on May 12-15.

The store is located at 11 E. Main St., on the square in historic downtown Plymouth. Some of the local vendors participating in Sweet Saturday included The Plymouth Improvement Committee, hosting their annual flower sale, hanging baskets and trellis pots.

Scott with Bazinga Kettle Corn served up his signature sweet and salty recipe. Jen with Fine N'Dandy Farms had a gorgeous selection of indoor plants and potted greens. Who can forget about The Plymouth Cheesecake Lady tempting your tastebuds with her lemon blueberry, strawberry, peanut butter fudge, and more left you wanting one of each flavor.

Granny's Collection had hand painted planter boxes and outdoor wooden crafts, and The Plymouth Area Historical Society hosted a free program featuring Kyle Von Kamp as he spoke about Revolutionary War Education.

During the summer months, you can find them on the run at many outdoor markets and street festivals all across Ohio. Storefront hours in the summer are limited, are June 2-5, June 17-18 for the Father's Day Market, July 29-30 for Christmas in July and Aug. 4-7.

Find Village Roots on Facebook at <https://www.facebook.com/villagerootsmarket/> or Instagram at <https://www.instagram.com/villagerootsmarket/>

the sole provider for their family, with 0-5 kids, and quickly discover that life isn't always so easy.

I overheard many students commenting that "kids are expensive", and "man, groceries cost a lot of money!" Students were pulled over and given tickets if they were found to be speeding, driving without insurance, and even for aggressive and distracted driving. They were given a ticket by Officer Garret Nedrow and had to then go to the Judge. Some students went into debt after they spent the day treating themselves and their five kids to a day at the spa. Can we say "reality check?"

The students automatically had 24% of their paycheck deducted for taxes, 10% to retirement, and are given student loan payments appropriate to their education level, along with credit card debt. They must then purchase housing, insurance, utilities, groceries, clothing, and entertainment (to name just a few) for their family. These were the different tables that they visited throughout the morning. The hope is that students will learn the importance of being financially responsible by making educated choices for themselves and their families.

The program was introduced to the Tech Prep team by Crystal Escalera, School Counselor at PioneerCTC. Working together, Tech Prep, NCSC and Directions Credit union broadened the program in local schools.

The stations at the event were manned by local community volunteers (banking, insurance, police, etc.) along with former teachers and staff and some of the Madison high school students in their respective career-technical programs. Many of these career-tech students end up graduating high school with an associate's degree!

Some of the feedback from the students after the event were, "I really like that we are learning about this in school, and I wish we would have done this before now."

"I loved how much it actually taught me."

"This gave me a realization on how many things you have to spend your money on."

"I liked it because it's how life is in real life. It shows us how we can do things by ourselves and not having our parents with us."

"I liked that you got to simulate what adults have to experience in their lives, so when I am an adult, I know what to expect."

"I liked that the cop was there and would give someone a ticket if they were running (speeding)."

DEPUTY NEDROW speaks with Deondrae Holt and Estella Kopt-Smith at the Reality Store Event and issues a citation. Citations could include speeding (running in the gym), assault (rough play) or driving without insurance (bought a car but no insurance).

179th Airlift Wing conducts “Flying Legacy” tribute

The 164th Airlift Squadron conducted a ceremonial final formation flight of two C-130H Hercules as part of their “Flying Legacy” tribute ceremony, April 23, held at the 179th Airlift Wing, Mansfield Lahm Air National Guard Base, in Ohio. The unit invited current members, their family and friends as well as prior service members to join them in a private ceremony in order to pay tribute to the historical flying unit’s aviation history as it enters a new era with a new non-aviation based mission.

Col. Darren Hamilton, 179th Airlift Wing commander, opened the ceremony thanking those in attendance and briefing an outline of the plan for embarking on the ceremonial final formation flight followed by remarks regarding the historical significance of the day for the crowd in front of a C-130H Hercules static display.

“It’s tradition to have a ‘Fini Flight’ for aviators flying their last time. In this case, it’s a symbolic final flight for our C-130 community, a mission that has been our identity in Mansfield since 1976. We will continue to fly this mission into early June when the last of the iron leaves the ramp, but this was our last chance to give it the ceremonial ending it deserves and share that with our past and present members, their families and friends.”

Hamilton has been a part of this C-130 community his entire life. He looked into the crowd and identified prior members who helped him along the way, detailing how he first visited the base as a child, later joined as an enlisted C-130 maintainer, took advantage of the Ohio Air National Guard’s state tuition assistance to obtain his degree and commission as an officer, eventually flying the C-130 and becoming the 179th Airlift Wing commander.

“The skull patch that you see on our 164th Airlift Squadron is world-renowned. The heritage goes back to 1942, when it was first flown with the 363rd Fighter Squadron in World War II with Aces like Bud Anderson and Chuck Yeager.”

Hamilton said, “Then in 1946, they transferred that unit to Mansfield and it was formally recognized by 1948. That’s 74 years, officially, of flying here and if you go back to the World War II lineage, that’s 80 years of flying.”

Ohio is home to a rich aviation history, known widely as the birthplace of aviation. The unit at Mansfield Lahm Air National Guard Base has a very rich history in military aviation.

The 363rd Fighter Squadron was established at Hamilton Field, California in December 1942. The skull was first painted on a P-39 Airacobra door and followed the unit to World War II, flying the P-51 Mustang. That wartime 363rd Fighter Squadron was re-designated as the 164th Fighter Squadron and was allotted to the Ohio Air National Guard, on May 24, 1946, bestowing the lineage, history, honors, and colors of the 363rd Fighter Squadron.

Organized at Mansfield Lahm Regional Airport, named in honor of Gen. Frank P. Lahm, a military aviation pioneer born in Mansfield Ohio. Lahm is credited for his contributions to bringing flight to the military after flying with the Wright Brothers, of Dayton Ohio.

Over the past 74 years of aviation at Mansfield Lahm ANGB, the squadron has been assigned the F-51D/H Mustang, B-26 Invader, F-80C Shooting Star, F-84E/F Thunderstreak, F-100D/F Super Saber, C-130B/H Hercules and C-27J Spartan.

During the F-84 fighter era, Fred Haise Jr., flew with the unit before going on to become an astronaut and flew as the lunar module pilot as part of the historic Apollo 13 mission in 1970.

The unit transitioned from a fighter squadron to an airlift squadron in 1976, and has remained an airlift squadron until now.

Hamilton acknowledged that the transitions from one aircraft to another have always been hard, but this may be their greatest challenge yet.

“This unit is historically resilient. Time tested and able to adapt to any mission and get the job done. There have been many mission changes in our past, different air frames and different skillsets needed but the culture has always remained its strength. It’s the people who have made this installation a success in whatever the mission has asked of them and it’s the reason they will continue to make history.”

The two aircraft flew in formation, each performing an air drop visible to the crowd and then performed a low altitude pass over the historic hangar 102, finally taxiing in where they were greeted by the fire department’s water arches as they parked.

“This is a difficult and challenging time for many of our members, past and present.” Hamilton said, “Today we acknowledge the loss of an aviation based mission in Mansfield as a sad day for many, we honor the accomplishments of all those who have served this unit in its storied history.”

Although the loss of the aviation based mission is not easy, it is important to recognize that the unit will carry on its legacy as it transitions to this new era as the 179th Cyber Wing.

“We look to the future with optimism. We recognize the history this unit continues to make. Being selected to become the first Cyber wing in the Air National Guard is another historic milestone in a long tradition of adapting to the call of duty.”

Hamilton said, “In a world of increasing technological advancement, this new mission secures Mansfield’s future as a vital contributor to the defense of Ohio and this great nation for generations to come.”

Brig. Gen. Gary McCue, a prior commander of the 179th Airlift Wing, shared his thoughts.

“This Wing is going to be the first to do what it’s being tasked to do, it’s going to be the vanguard, a lot of other Wings will follow suit.” McCue added, “For a lot of years, they said they were going to close us. Now we’re going to be the lead in the explosion of how we do things in the future.”

We’re not done yet, Mansfield.

Cooper announces retirement from Richland Academy of the Arts

Richland Academy is celebrating 30 years of arts education in Downtown Mansfield. Looking to the future, RAA is announcing the retirement of Marianne Cooper, Founder and Executive Director of the Academy.

Marianne Cooper has always been actively involved and passionate about the arts scene in Mansfield, having participated in numerous choirs, theatre productions, community events, and other arts-related endeavors. Having realized the enormous talent that existed in Mansfield, Marianne founded Richland Academy in 1991 with the purpose of creating a community center where individuals of all backgrounds could pursue their creativity and hone their skills in dance, music, visual arts, theatre, and later martial arts. Richland Academy's founding President was the late Dr. Tom Croghan, who also served as the founding President of the Renaissance Theatre.

Marianne Cooper graduated from The Ohio State University with a Bachelor of Science in Music Education and later from Bowling Green State University with a Master of Music while pursuing PhD work in Education Administration. She also studied at Tanglewood under Copland, Bernstein, Munch and Ross.

Marianne taught music in various public schools, then later became an Associate Professor of Music at The Ohio State University at Mansfield teaching music education classes, choral music, voice, and musical theatre. She toured nationally with the Norman Luboff Choir and also appeared in music theatre, opera, and oratorio in three surrounding states. She also conducted three European Choir Tours and one National Tour with The Ohio State University Singers at Mansfield. After retiring and becoming an Emeritus Associate Professor of Music, Marianne founded and has served as the Executive Director of Richland Academy of the Arts for over 30 years. In honor of that accomplishment, North Central State College inducted Marianne into their Entrepreneur Hall of Fame in 2012.

Looking to the next 30 years, Richland Academy has been actively involved in rebranding, building a new website, and implementing a new strategic plan, all of which Marianne knows will propel the Academy forward for another successful 30 years. For RAA's 30 Year Anniversary, a celebratory evening event will be held at Richland Academy on June 11.

Ohio Rail Development Commission approves grant to Ashland Railway

The Ohio Rail Development Commission (ORDC) approved a grant award in the amount of $613,898, matched by Ashland Railway (ASRY) at $613,898, for a total project investment of $1,227,796. The necessary rehabilitation work will take place in two distinct phases. The first phase will consist of replacement of five turnouts (four on the lead track and one on the adjacent main line.) During the second phase, ASRY will complete tie replacement, ballast installation, and surfacing work.

ASRY owns and operates 56 miles of track in Richland, Ashland, Wayne, and Huron counties. Traffic is interchanged with Norfolk Southern in Mansfield, Wheeling & Lake Erie Railway in Plymouth, and CSX in Willard. The Ashland Lead track serves three customers in the Ashland Business Park: Origo, Liquibox, and Packaging Corporation of America. Combined, these customers employ 435 people in Ashland County.

Matthew Dietrich, Executive Director of the ORDC, said, "this project is an excellent example of how investments in shortline railroads in the state have positive economic impacts on the region. By improving the rail infrastructure, ORDC is not only leveraging railroad investment but also improving the critical infrastructure needed to provide rail service to multiple companies in the area. ORDC is happy to continue to partner with ASRY in their rehabilitation efforts in Ohio."

Bob Thompson, Division Engineer, Ashland Railway, said "ORDC's contributions to Ashland Railway's projects have enabled our teams to restore and improve spans of track that would otherwise be difficult to address due to the expenditures involved. The ORDC staff is exceptionally knowledgeable and helpful throughout the application and project processes, ensuring professional project outcomes."

ORDC assists Ohio companies and communities in creating and retaining jobs by preserving rail service to existing shippers and providing rail service to new customers.

In addition, the ORDC funds projects to improve railroad-highway grade crossings to increase safety to the traveling public. Please remember, when around railroad tracks always expect a train. Rail lines in Ohio are private property and trespassing is both strictly prohibited and extremely dangerous.

For additional information regarding this project or for additional information on ORDC, contact Wende Jourdan at 614-728-9497.

St. Peter's School celebrates May Crowning Ceremony

St. Peter's High School Class of 2022 celebrated the start to the end of their high school experience on Thursday with the celebration of May Crowning at St. Peter Church. A longstanding tradition in the Catholic Church, the month of May is devoted to Mary, the mother of Jesus.

During the homily, St. Peter Church pastor Father John Miller explained to those in attendance Mary's important role in the church.

For the Class of 2022, May Crowning is the first time high school seniors wear their graduation gowns. The senior class elects ten of their classmates to serve on the May Court. They are selected based on their faith, kindness to others, and attentively to God's will.

This year's May Queen was Alana Mitchell, and her escort was Corey Schenkelberg. Members of the court include Madison Bays, escorted by Zachary Keffalas, Elizabeth Dauterman, escorted by Bryan Phillips, Kendall Nolen, escorted by James Williams, Jr., and Nakyrh Williams, escorted by Kellen Young.

This year's Crown Bearer is Tahlia Fulk, a St. Peter's School second-grader who made her First Holy Communion this past Sunday.

The May Crowning Mass also marked the first all-school liturgy since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic.

"Events like May Crowning are what help to set apart St. Peter's as a Catholic school. Students from kindergarten through high school worshipping together, as a school family, is a seminal part of the St. Peter's experience," said Laurie McKeon, St. Peter's Head of School.

"Not only is May Crowning a unique spiritual experience for our seniors at St. Peter's, but it is also an aspirational time for all our students."

Graduation ceremonies were held Sunday, May 15, in the high school auditorium.

Video and photos of Thursday's May Crowning ceremony can be found on the school's website at mansfieldstpeters.org.

After many year hiatus, Madison Olympics competition returns to Ram Field

Photos and Article By Traci Little

Madison Elementary Schools (Mifflin, Eastview and South) brought back a cherished Olympics-style competition event on Thursday evening, May 12, at Ram Field at Startek Stadium. Third to fifth grade students who qualified competed in different track and field events. Other activities were available for all the kids to take part in. They invited the community to come out and support the students and the entrance was by donation only.

Assistant Principal of Madison South, Kyle Gordon said, "I wanted to bring this event back because I remember how much it meant to me and many others when we had it. I've heard stories from others how they competed in it and still remember it many years before I participated in the 1990s as a South Elementary student. Many were happy this event was coming back and were excited to be able to come watch their grandchildren compete in it as well. Madison has such a strong community and we thought this was something a lot of people have missed and would enjoy seeing brought back. I think it's been at least 15-20 years since this event took place."

The third and fourth graders competed against each other for the trophy, while fifth graders on different home room teams competed against each other for another trophy. A first place finish earned three points for the school/homeroom, second place earned two points and third earned one point.

Madison South won first place overall with the most points for the third/fourth grade competition, while the homeroom team of Andress/Henry/Vermillion won the trophy for the fifth grade competition.

Third and fourth grade boys and girls from Madison South, Eastview and Mifflin competed against each other for an overall winning school. While the fifth grade boys and girls' homeroom teams of Andress/Henry/Vermillion; Wyrick/Cechon; Harsh/Spencer/Stimpert; and Rowe/Tinney competed against each other for the overall homeroom team winner.

The third grade boys 50-yard dash winners went to, first place, Dane Moysi; second, Austin McClellan; and third, Garrett Spurlock. The third grade girls 50-yard dash winners went to, first place, Lily Eckenwiler; second, Delaney Conway; and third, Bailey Moore.

The fourth grade boys 50-yard dash winners went to, first place, Caleb Williams; second, Dillon Herder; and third, Shawn Sydnor. The fourth grade girls 50-yard dash winners went to, first, Elyse Emery; second, Nevaeh Woods; and third, Aaliyah Watson.

The fifth grade boys 50-yard dash winners went to, first place, Christian Roper; second, Drayden Tschantz; and third, Camden Conrad. The fifth grade girls 50-yard dash winners went to, first place, Bella Childs; second, Leanna Baer; and third, Hannah Evans.

There were many other races including the 100-meter and 400-meter dash races, 4x100 relay races, long jump competitions, med ball throws, and different sporting competitions (soccer, football and basketball).

Kyle Gordon went onto say, "Exposing the students to different competitions and seeing awesome examples of sportsmanship all night was amazing. Watching the kids cheer each other on and take pride in their accomplishments was great to see."

"The support for the community was overwhelming. We raised a good amount of money through donations for the PE department to update equipment and other things."

"I'm extremely thankful to the students and families that came out, as well as all of the help we had putting this together. It took months of planning and a lot of extra time on the part of the volunteers. Seeing the smiles and fun everyone was having made it completely worth it. I'm excited to hopefully continue it again next year!"
