The Barnstormers

By Bob Carter

In the early days of aviation most folks standing on mother earth pondered at times, what it would be like to be closer to the clouds and looking down. A few had that chance, and if they did fly, there was the question once aloft of how would they get down.

The airplanes were old, the skill of the pilot was unknown and their was no insurance on passengers, pilot or aircraft. Their overriding thought was focused on their first flying adventure.

Jeff Treisch of Galion, took his first flight in a 1916 World War I Curtis Jenny JN-4D and got the bug.

In 1935, he got his pilot's license, and with a good friend, bought a well used 1929 Keith Rider biplane for $200. Jeff was a good mechanic and kept the engine in top shape and, to make some money on weekends, he went "barnstorming" at county fairs or anywhere there was a crowd and a field where he could land.

He had a novel way of setting his price. Carrying a set of scales he charged passengers a penny a pound. Gas was only 18 to 20 cents a gallon. He remembered a very large woman that weighted 265 pounds. All of her on board, he started down the field and the terrified woman started screaming. Jeff taxied back and tried to calm her down. The next try resulted in the same hysterical screams. That time he just took off! After all there was $2.65 on the line.

Jeff recalled the time he landed at Millersburg in a field next to the county fair. He misjudged the field and landed in tall grass which brushed the bottom wings. He couldn't take off until he mowed the darned grass for a narrow runway, which time cut into his profit margin.

On another occasion, Russell Gledhill, another barnstormer, came to Jeff's house very late one night, got him out of bed and asked if he was willing to fly Al Mulburg's plane out of a small fenced in farm field where he'd had to make a forced landing. Gledhill was a rather big man as was Mulburg and Triesch was only five foot three and weighed about 120 pounds. Take-off space was short and every pound on board counted. Jeff just made it over the fence and at the Bucyrus Airport cars were parked with lights on along the unlighted air field so he could find it.

Also an ambulance and fire truck were standing by. There was danger but nothing happened when he took off.

Then there was the time he had to make a forced landing on a farm field and tore some of the fabric on a wing. He had a can of dope that would shrink and harden the wing fabric. He went to a farm house to borrow some rags to patch the wing. The farm wife insisted he take her brand new bed sheet. An airplane on her farm was really something special!

Gledhill was a barn stormer too. In 1938, he once landed in a cow pasture at the top of Delaware St., in Lexington. A nursing home, houses and church are there now, but the method was to buzz the field, scare the cows away and land.

The late Lloyd Whitney was a 10-year-old kid when Gledhill took him for his first plane ride in a WACO-F with a Wright OX5 engine. That wasn't enough for Lloyd. He got his pilot's license when he was 16 in 1944. He took his flying lessons at the old Gage's Field in Ontario.

Gledhill's most interesting passengers were a couple that wanted to get married in the air. That day, in a closed plane, he flew 240 passengers before the big event. Two wagons were parked at the end of the runway for a band.

Russell took the young couple up to 1,200 feet with the justice of the peace sitting in the front and the couple in the back. Gledhill slowed the engine sound. The groom was so excited he put the ring on her wrong hand, which the pilot called attention to. When time to land, there were people scattered all over the air field, so he did what he had done so many times, he buzzed the field and folks scattered just like the cows did!

Some early flyers had an ornery streak. They would take a chicken aloft to 1,000 feet or so and throw it out and try to land before the chicken did. Often the chicken beat them but they seemed to be unhurt, and were seen running around the field or wherever they landed.

World War II ended most of the Barnstorming and the thrill of an open cockpit flight.

Bill introduces licensing advanced practice respiratory therapists

State Representatives Marilyn John (R-Richland County) and Tom Young (R-Washington Twp.) introduced legislation that will license advanced practice respiratory therapists (APRTs).

This legislation seeks to improve access to cardio-pulmonary care in Ohio through specified knowledge and expertise of APRTs. Currently, there is large gap between the number of patients in need of cardio-pulmonary care and physicians who have the capability of providing such care. This legislation would bridge that gap and allow more Ohioans to get the help they need.

"The health and safety of Ohioans has always been a priority for me," said John. "We have the ability to help people struggling with these niche issues, and I am proud to be sponsoring legislation that further allows us to do so."

APRTs are new, non-physician providers that offer assistance to pulmonary, critical care, and sleep physicians in both adult and pediatric settings. Under this legislation, they would only practice under the supervision of a physician who specializes in these areas and would not be able to prescribe medication.

"Licensing APRTs will tremendously help physicians with their workload while simultaneously providing proper care for patients," said John. "Closing this gap is extremely important."

Benefit to help Madison families

A spaghetti dinner benefit will be held Saturday, Oct. 29, at 4 pm at the Madison Bingo Hall, 750 5th Ave., Madison area.

Ingredients

- 2 Loaves Italian Bread, cut in cubes
(If loaves are large use 1 1/2 - Keep in mind you want enough to fill the baking dish).
- 4 cups strawberries, washed and halved
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 tsp. vanilla
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 2 cups milk
- 8 ounces mascarpone cheese
- 2/3 cup powder sugar
- 1 1/2 cups heavy cream
(You will need an additional amount of brown sugar and powdered sugar to sprinkle later)

In a bowl add the strawberries, 1/2 cup sugar and 1 tsp. vanilla. Let sit for at least 2 hours (you can even do this the day ahead and let sit overnight).

Butter a 13 x 9 x 2 baking dish. Blend the mascarpone and the powdered sugar together. (You can soften it up with a few seconds in the microwave if you need too). Set aside.

In a blender add the eggs, brown sugar, 1 tsp. vanilla and milk, blend (or whisk in bowl) well and put in bowl with bread to soak. (you may need to do this in two batches)

Drain strawberries, reserving liquid for sauce.

Layer bread, strawberries and mascarpone in the baking dish, repeating to make several layers. Sprinkle with brown sugar.

Bake at 350 for 25 minutes uncovered and then turn oven off and cover, leave in hot oven another 20 minutes.

In a saucepan, heat the heavy cream, bring to a slow boil and stir until it begins to thicken, add the reserved strawberry juice and whisk in. Set aside to drizzle over top as you serve the pudding. Sprinkle with some powdered sugar as well.

By Mátiece Thomas Fear can be a very powerful and crippling thing in our lives. Whether it comes from something we understand or not, it can be all-too-real to the person that is feeling it.

A fear of a new relationship can be caused by being hurt in the past. A fear of going for a new job or promotion could be the result of the worry of failing or being rejected.

The fear of trying something new might be caused by the unknown of what people might think or that you might not be successful. These are just a few reasons someone might feel fear.

Take a moment and ask yourself, "Do I have a fear that is holding me back from living my best life?" If the answer is yes then it's time to take control of what is holding you back.

Let me share with you my story from last week when I faced my biggest fear.

I have a fear of driving to new places, especially far away and especially when the traffic is crazy busy.

I am not sure why, but it is something that makes me practically have a panic attack, and don't even get me started on detours. I have had people chuckle at this fear, or roll their eyes when I told them why I couldn't go somewhere, all that did was lower my confidence even more.

I will be 49 this year and I finally said, no more! I started this summer with little trips — places I have never been and worked my way up to this past weekend when I drove to Cleveland. Was I scared? Yes. Did I have to remind myself to breathe? Yes. But did I do it YES!

I not only faced my fears this past week, but I also tried something new I had been dreaming of trying — paddleboarding.

To grow and move forward in this life we not only need to face our fears we need to try new things. Being pushed out of our comfort zone whether in the gym or in life is the way to live your best life with you in the driver seat!

Remember it's important to take baby steps when facing your fears. Follow me at Instagram-5ptsfitness_trainergirl for nutrition and workout tips.

This Week's Pet Looking for A Forever Home

Ida

Ida came as a stray in March and is around 2 years old. She is very smart, and VERY loving. Her life goal is to find a lap that she can sit on while you pet her and tell her how beautiful she is! She absolutely loves to cuddle and be close to people. She is incredibly friendly and immediately warms up to new people.

She also enjoys eating treats, shaking paws, chasing toys, and staring off into the distance.

She seems to enjoy kids but does not seem to be a fan of cats. When she was dog tested, she failed, but whenever she sees another dog, especially if there is a fence in between them, she will either try to play with them or lick them through the fence. Maybe, just maybe she would be good with a calm dog! She is wonderful!

Those interested in meeting any of the Richland County Dog Warden's other dogs, the kennels are open 11-4:15 Monday-Friday and 10-2 on Saturday.

On Sept. 2, the dog shelter will stay open until 7:30 pm. Volunteers will be available to help find the perfect dog. The dog shelter received a very generous donation, which has allowed the adoption price to drop to $79, which includes spay/neuter, license, microchip and some vaccines. The shelter is located at 810 N. Home Rd., Mansfield.

Volunteers are always welcome and can stop at the shelter to register as a volunteer. Volunteers help walk dogs, fill Kongs and other tasks. The shelter uses a lot of bleach, detergent and dog treats and welcomes donations.

•WAA makes National Call to remember 9/11

(Continued from Front Page) and Blue Star Families, and veterans, will join to share in the patriotic act of waving the flag, and sharing the stories of those who raised their hand to serve following the events of that fateful day. The flag waving will start at 8:46 am ET, when on Tuesday, Sept. 11, 2001, five hijackers took control of American Airlines Flight 11 and flew it into the heart of New York City and the northern facade of the World Trade Center's North Tower (1 WTC) and end at 10:03 am ET when four hijackers crashed United Airlines Flight 93 into a field in Stonycreek Township near Shanksville, PA, on the same day.

Everyone can join in by tuning in to the organization's Official Facebook page, to share pictures and videos from your own community flag waving. Participants are encouraged to take video and pictures of their participation in the national flag waving and share them with WAA, their family, and their friends to help REMEMBER, HONOR and TEACH the generation born after 9/11, how hard times can strengthen us as a nation. P

WAA waves the American Flag every Tuesday morning between 9-10 am ET and encourages the public to join them. Each week, messages of unity and remembrance are shared and the legacy of the "Freeport Flag Ladies" - who took to the Hill in Freeport on 9/11/01 following the events of that morning to hoist the flag and share a message of strength - lives on as it did each week for 18 years.

After they retired on Sept. 11, 2019, WAA took over the tradition and continues the weekly flag waving along US Route 1 in Jonesboro, Maine. "Each Tuesday, we are joined by dozens of members of the local community and curious people stopping to be part of something meaningful," said Karen Worcester, Executive Director, Wreaths Across America. "I hope people will join us this year, both on the anniversary of 9/11, as well as each Tuesday moving forward. This flag waving has taken on new meaning for us all and given a spark of hope for unity and patriotism during this difficult time in our country."

Following the events of 9/11, three patriotic women (Elaine Greene, Joann Miller and Carmen Foote) were moved to find an old American flag they had stored at home and stand on a hill in Freeport, Maine, waving that flag to honor victims.

These women became nationally known as "The Freeport Flag Ladies," and proudly hoisted the Stars and Stripes every Tuesday morning for the following 18 years. After they retired on Sept. 11, 2019, (their last 9/11 remembrance) the following Tuesday, Sept. 17, 2019, Wreaths Across America took the helm and continued the weekly flag-waving tradition along US Route 1 in Jonesboro, Maine.

LET'S GO RAMS TO V-I-C-T-O-R-Y — With Dawn Wirick in the background, Helynn Karr, Amy Swartz and Rachel Ball, three of Madison's cheerleading group, leading the yells in support of the fighting Rams as they whipped the Whippets at Shelby's Skiles Field Friday evening, trouncing the host team 27-3. This week the Rams entertain Malabar in the season home opener at Ram Field.

LEXINGTON QUARTER TONY DELIANIDES fires long downfield in first quarter action in Saturday afternoon's game against Malabar's Falcons. Delianides' arm proved to be most of Lexington's offense as the ground-gaining attack sputtered, gaining only 47 yards. Delianides gained 97 through the air on six completions. Leaping high to attempt to block the aerial is Tony Jackson (66).

LEXINGTON'S EASTERN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL — The photos above are of the interior of Lexington's new Eastern Elementary School on Castor Rd. Open house will be held Sunday, September 9 from 2-4 p.m. The public is invited. Refreshments will be provided by Lexington Mothers Club. The new school, which is located in the former Innovations Co. building, is for grades 4, 5 and 6 and has space for 27 class rooms and 700 students. There is a combination of several classrooms of the pod, walls without doors and conventional types. The new school contains approximately 50,000 square feet. The building is large enough to provide sufficient space for a central supplies storage area which will enable school administrators to buy supplies in large quantity discounts.

There is also a walk-in freezer large enough to keep food for all the schools which heretofore was kept in rented commercial cold storage facilities in Mansfield.
