RPS gala raises nearly $180,000 to support local families

Photos and Article By Traci Little

The 2026 Richland Pregnancy Services Gala raised nearly $180,000 on Oct. 15, drawing approximately 500 attendees in support of the organization's mission. Guests demonstrated their generosity and commitment to the community by supporting an organization that serves local individuals and families.

Held under the theme "Written with Purpose," the annual fund-raising event celebrated the impact of Richland Pregnancy Services (RPS) while highlighting the importance of continued community investment in its work.

In addition to the nearly $180,000 raised during the gala, corporate underwriters contributed another $30,000 to cover event expenses. Their generosity ensured that 100% of donations received during the evening could go directly toward serving clients.

The financial success of the event reflected the strong commitment of individuals, businesses and community partners who believe in the organization's mission and the difference its services make in the lives of local individuals and families.

An Evening of Inspiration and Purpose

The evening began with an opening prayer led by RPS Board President Mike Getz, followed by dinner and a ministry update from Executive Director Amy Kahl.

During her remarks, Kahl acknowledged the challenges of serving individuals and families facing difficult circumstances while emphasizing the importance of compassion and perseverance.

"We keep showing up. We keep building. Keep serving. Keep loving," Kahl told attendees.

Kahl also highlighted the organization's mentoring and support programs, which provide continued encouragement to mothers and fathers navigating unexpected pregnancies.

"Women need to know that they are not alone and that they will not be alone after they choose life," she said.

Guests also heard a client testimony, offering a personal perspective on the impact of the organization's services and the importance of having support during challenging circumstances.

Featured speaker and comedian Tim Boyd entertained attendees with a mixture of laughter and tears as part of the evening's program, which centered on the theme "Written with Purpose."

The celebration concluded with a prayer led by Pastor Raymond Cochran Jr., RPS Board Vice President.

Community Support Makes Gala Success Possible

The success of the 2026 gala was made possible through the generosity of local businesses, organizations and individuals whose financial support continues to strengthen the mission of Richland Pregnancy Services.

Kahl reminded attendees that their contributions represent more than financial support. Each gift helps ensure that Richland Pregnancy Services can continue reaching individuals and families when they need encouragement and assistance.

"But every gift has helped make it possible for RPS to be here, ready to offer hope when a woman needs it most," she said.

Letter to the Editor

I am blessed to have been raised in this community my entire growing up years. I was a Lexington student for all 13 years, and I am a proud '87 Lex graduate.

My sense of pride comes from the memories I share with my friends that were made possible by the incredible, professional educators and staff who taught and/or mentored me along the way. It was also the bus drivers, janitors, secretaries, cooks, aides, administrators, and the coaches who made me feel special. Many of them have become life-long friends. I can't put a value on the relationships that have been built, how grateful I am to all of them for the impact they've made on my life, and what they continue to mean to me. I can look back with the fondest of memories because of these people, and as an adult, I now understand how it took a strong community supporting us in every facet of our public education system.

After college, I chose to return to "The Village" to begin my adult life. My wife, Teresa, and I chose to have our three children educated here, knowing the quality education that they would receive. We could have found less expensive land with lower taxes elsewhere, but we have built two homes in the district because of the quality educational opportunities we knew our kids would receive. I have been privileged to serve as a Lex educator for the past 22 years and coached 21 seasons of athletics during that time.

"Together, We Are Lex" is a slogan that was adopted by our district leadership to begin the new 2026-'27 school year. It has been a refreshing year of optimism for the future of our schools moving forward. We have always had a rich tradition of excellence in academics, athletics, and the arts. Walk the halls of our new building and you can see it. Talk to anyone who has been a part of it and they will tell you. With a new elementary building being built and scheduled to open for our students in less than 2 years, it's even more essential for us to continue to support not only the buildings that we've voted to construct through totally separate, previously approved funds, but the students who will fill those classrooms.

Legendary Coach Woody Hayes said, "You win with people." This is true in any organization. However, we're not talking about just an organization. We're talking about the very heart and the future of our community - our Lexington School District and the children it serves. Please take time to educate yourself and others on the facts of each levy, and join me in voting yes for both levies when we have the opportunity, Tuesday, Nov. 3. On behalf of everyone who has a stake in the game and has made an investment in our young people, directly or indirectly, I thank you in advance for your strong and thoughtful consideration in doing so!

Dear residents of Lexington Schools,

I'm reaching out to ask for your support of the two ballot issues before the voters of Lexington Schools on November 3rd. These issues are critically needed to maintain Lexington's service to our students, residents and community. We have already accomplished over $2 million in savings. However, the combination of reduced state funding and inflation continues to outpace our efforts to control costs.

THE ENTERTAINMENT EXAMINER

— By Ian Stumbo —

Zach Cregger makes another great movie with his adaptation of the video game Resident Evil.

While not related to the Milla Jovovich series, this movie creates its own kind of universe and is great fun.

Austin Abrams is perfectly cast as Bryan, a medical courier transporting an organ to Raccoon City. He is traveling in deadly winter weather while encountering a zombie outbreak.

The movie follows Bryan from location to location as he encounters sick people, creatures and all sorts of obstacles along the way.

Abrams is so great because he portrays Bryan as a hapless, clueless guy and Cregger writes the script with a great deal of funny dialogue as Bryan comments about all the crazy things happening to him.

The special effects and creature makeup is very well done and after the excellent Weapons last year, Cregger has become a reliable director. Making this movie following one person and one singular story in this world was very smart and makes for an enjoyable movie.

Resident Evil is a fun, quick 90 minutes. Cregger and Abrams give audiences a fun action packed movie that is sure to satisfy fans of the video game. The only element that divided me was the ending though it seems like there is a sequel to be made after all the money it took in at the box office. Hopefully there is another movie made in this world.

Richland County Foundation funds health and housing needs

The Richland County Foundation Board of Trustees approved grants totaling $1,477,004.99 to nonprofit organizations during its October meeting.

Competitive and field of interest fund grants were approved by the board to four organizations.

Community Health Access Project (CHAP) received a grant to enhance care coordination services for uninsured and underinsured residents in Richland County. Operating through Community Health Workers and the Pathways Community HUB system, CHAP partners with Third Street Family Health Services, ProjectOne, Independent Living Center of North Central Ohio, Rubies Women's Group, Shelby Helpline, and NAMI Richland County to provide comprehensive services including health-care access, housing, transportation, food resources, employment support, behavioral health, and maternal health.

Mansfield Leased Housing Corporation (MLHC) received a grant to expand the Sterkel Heights affordable housing development located off Cook Road in Mansfield. The project will include 90 additional one-bedroom, two-bedroom, and three-bedroom apartments. Developed by MLHC, a nonprofit affiliate of Mansfield Metropolitan Housing Authority, and in partnership with Provident Management, Inc., the project addresses Richland County's documented need for 2,700 additional affordable rental units by 2032, with 50% of Mansfield renters cost burdened. Construction is scheduled for April 2027–October 2028.

Richland Community Development Group received a grant for the "Wings Over Mansfield Air Show" scheduled for next summer at Mansfield Lahm Airport. The event aims to provide family entertainment, honor military service members, educate on aviation history, and inspire youth aviation careers while supporting economic development through local tourism. Event organizers expect 20,000-40,000 spectators which will generate an economic boost through hotel and restaurant reservations.

The Village of Butler received a grant to renovate Frances Hitchman Park next year. The project will create two pickleball courts, resurface existing tennis and basketball courts, and provide safe recreational facilities compliant with ADA standards. The project also received funding through an Ohio Nature Works Program grant and Worthington Township.

The Board of Trustees awarded 18 scholarships to students attending a career technical education school. The Scholarship Committee implemented a rolling deadline for CTE scholarships to meet various enrollment deadlines. The Foundation wants to help fill the gap between job openings and certified employees as well as lead the way to support workforce development through CTE scholarships.

The board of trustees approved grants from donor-advised funds which allow individuals and families the opportunity to make grant suggestions to favorite charities. Donor Advised Funds are a flexible and convenient alternative to a private foundation. It is also a way to keep charitable contributions anonymous, at the preference of the donor. The Board of Trustees approved grants from donor-advised funds to meet emerging needs at Avita Health Foundation, Catalyst Life Services, Chipewa Music Booster, Crawford Partnership, Community Health Access Project, Crossroads Community Church, Domestic Violence Shelter, First Congregational Church, Friendly House

Association, Holy Trinity Evangelical Lutheran Church, Hope Hollow, Kingwood Center Gardens, Love On A Mission, Malabar Farm Foundation, Mankind Murals, Inc., Mansfield Community Playhouse, Mansfield-Richland Area Educational Foundation, Inc., Mid-Ohio Youth Mentoring, North End Community Improvement Collaborative, North Central Ohio Industrial Museum, OhioHealth Foundation, Planned Parenthood of Greater Ohio, Renaissance Performing Arts, Richland Academy of the Arts, Richland County Children's Auxiliary DBA The New Store, Richland County Dog Warden, Salvation Army, St. Anne's Episcopal Church and Third Street Family Health Services.

A special grant was awarded to the National Scleroderma Foundation.

Applications being accepted for Earth Day Native Tree Giveaway Program

The Muskingum Watershed Conservancy District (MWCD) has announced the opening of applications for an Earth Day Native Tree Giveaway Program, an initiative designed to inspire the next generation of environmental stewards.

The program provides regional school students (grades K-12) across the Muskingum River and Duck Creek watersheds with native tree seedlings to take home and plant. By encouraging students to plant and care for their trees, MWCD aims to foster a lifelong connection to nature while supporting conservation, flood control, and improved water quality throughout the watershed.

"Trees are one of our most valuable natural resources, benefiting air and water quality, stabilizing soil, and providing habitat for wildlife," said Craig Butler, Executive Director at MWCD. "This program allows students to experience those benefits firsthand, watching their seedling grow year after year."

Schools within the watershed region, which includes Richland and Ashland counties, are invited to apply to receive between 250 and 1,000 seedlings for distribution to students.

The 2027 giveaway will feature three native species: Chestnut Oak, Serviceberry and Tulip Poplar. These trees were selected to maximize biodiversity and support a wide range of growing conditions ranging from small yards to rural properties.

The Benefits of a Morning Routine

By Kelley Kovacs, LMT
Comfrey Corner

For many people, mornings are the busiest part of the day. Between getting ready for school or work and rushing out the door, it can be easy to skip healthy habits. However, creating a simple morning routine can have a positive impact on both physical and mental well-being.

A good morning routine begins with waking up at a consistent time. This helps regulate the body's internal clock and can improve sleep quality.

Before reaching for your coffee, try starting the day with a glass of warm lemon water. It can be a refreshing way to rehydrate after a night's sleep and encourages you to begin the day by drinking more water.

Then enjoy a protein-rich breakfast, such as eggs or Greek yogurt topped with fresh blueberries and a handful of nuts.

This combination provides lasting energy, helps you stay full longer, and gives your body important nutrients to start the day.

Many people find that adding a few minutes of exercise, stretching, meditation, or taking a short walk in the fresh morning air helps reduce stress and improve their mood.

Others prefer reading a book, writing in a journal, or making a to-do list before starting the day. These small habits encourage a sense of control and help people feel more prepared for the challenges ahead.

A morning routine does not need to be complicated or take a lot of time. Even spending 15 to 20 minutes on positive activities can make a noticeable difference. Over time, these healthy habits become easier to maintain and can lead to increased productivity, better concentration, and improved overall health.

I've found that the way we begin our morning often sets the tone for the rest of the day. It doesn't have to be perfect—just a few quiet moments to stretch, enjoy a cup of coffee or tea, eat a nourishing breakfast, take a deep breath, think about what you're grateful for, or take a peaceful walk can make all the difference. Finding a routine that works for you is a simple way to care for both your body and your mind.

Shelby's McKown Family recognized for conservation

The McKown Family was recognized as one of five recipients of the Ohio Conservation Farm Family Awards presented at the 42nd Annual award ceremony on Sept. 24, 2026, during the Farm Science Review.

The program recognizes farm families for their exemplary efforts conserving soil, water, and related resources on land they farm. Conservation farm families also host a variety of educational programs, opening their farms to schools, scout groups, farm organizations and others.

The program is coordinated by the Ohio Department of Agriculture (ODA), Division of Soil and Water Conservation and co-sponsored by the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, Ohio Farmer magazine, the Ohio Federation of Soil and Water Conservation Districts, and the United States Department of Agriculture-Natural Resources Conservation Service (USDA-NRCS).

Neil, Pam, and Sam McKown own and operate Watershed Ranch, a 500-acre farm in Shelby. The ranch is aptly named because it sits on the Continental Divide on a glacial moraine in the Black Fork Watershed.

The McKown's grow corn, soybeans, wheat, and hay plus have an additional 115 acres dedicated to Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) forest restoration of white oak, red oak, hickory, beech, red elm, maple and natural American chestnut trees.

The farm is home to angus cows and calves and the McKown's implemented grassed waterways, nutrient management plans (NMP), grazing and drainage management, wildlife habitat improvement, livestock exclusion fencing, conservation tillage, filter strips, no-till plowing and use organic products on their farm. They annually host students of St. Mary's School, Shelby, at their farm to teach and share their passion for conservation and the natural world.

The McKown's were awarded the Richland Soil and Water Conservation District Cooperator of the Year award in 2024, and Pam has served as a board supervisor since 2025.

Neil said, "Our mantra has always been to leave the ranch in better shape than we found it."

KCCC's Landscape & Ag Technology Program wins first place

MOUNT VERNON — Knox County Career Center's (KCCC) Landscape & Ag Technology program won first place at the 11th Annual 2026 Ohio Green Industry Association's (OGIA) Ohio High School Landscape Olympics (OHLO), which was held at Ohio State University Agricultural Technical Institute in Wooster.

KCCC's Landscape Olympics is coming off a third-place finish in the OHLO in 2025 after earning back-to-back 1st-place finishes in 2021 and 2022.

OGIA's OHLO tests students' skills through hands-on, competitive events designed by industry professionals. OHLO broadens the high school educational experience and introduces students to the many opportunities available in the green industry.

KCCC's Landscape & Ag Technology students competed in 20 events against 15 other schools with 169 competitors and medaled in 12 of the 20 events. KCCC had three students who finished in the top five as OHLO Top Individuals. Weston Bostic, senior, finished in 1st place, followed by Ethan Hurlow, senior, in second place. AJ Salmons, junior, finished in fourth place.

OHLO is open to all Ohio high schools and career centers with horticulture programs. Single teams from all participating schools may compete in all events. Competitive events test the students' abilities to interact in a hands-on environment. Events are planned, implemented, and scored by industry sponsors using guidelines generated by OGIA.

"I am extremely proud of our students! They were meticulous in their approach and did a great job competing throughout the day at the Landscape Olympics," said John Campbell, KCCC's Landscape & Ag Technology instructor.

Campbell added, "I would like to thank all of the industry professionals for taking the time to judge each event and meet with students. OHLO is judged and put on entirely by businesses in the industry, and we couldn't do it without them."

Rep Marilyn John celebrates new Ohio Women's Monument

State Representative Marilyn John (R-Richland County) joined in the unveiling ceremony and celebration for the Ohio Women's Monument at the Ohio Statehouse.

The unveiling ceremony began at the Ohio Theatre and then moved to the South Plaza of the Ohio Statehouse where the monument was unveiled. The monument, which features four granite columns etched with the names of Ohio women and nine bronze figures representing women across generations, eras, and experiences, was designed by Brenda Councill.

"As only the second woman to have served in the elected offices I've held, I am proud to walk in the paths that so many women before me forged," said Rep. John. "Speaker Jo Ann Davidson specifically was a mentor to me and so many other women in public service served the state of Ohio. Like her, may we continue to break through these glass ceilings so every little girl can know she can do or be anything she dreams."

The Ohio Women's Monument is the result of more than six years of planning and collaboration among Ohio legislators and leaders, the Ohio Women's Suffrage Centennial Commission, the Capitol Square Foundation, the Capitol Square Review and Advisory Board and the Ohio Arts Council.

Empowering the Arts: Richland Academy Invests in its Future and Downtown Mansfield

By Traci Little

For more than three decades, Richland Academy of the Arts has provided a place for creativity to flourish in the heart of downtown Mansfield. Now, through an ambitious $3.7 million capital campaign, the organization is investing in its facilities to ensure future generations have opportunities to discover their talents, develop their skills and experience the transformative power of the arts.

Led by executive director Dr. Michael Benson, the Empower the Arts campaign seeks to modernize the Academy's aging facilities, expand educational opportunities and strengthen its longstanding commitment to downtown Mansfield.

With approximately $2.4 million raised toward its $3.7 million goal, the academy has made significant progress while continuing to seek community support for the remaining improvements.

The initiative represents more than a building renovation. It is an investment in arts education, community engagement and the continued revitalization of Mansfield's downtown district.

"The local arts community is a key asset for Mansfield and our entire region. We have been blessed to have strong philanthropic support for the arts for well over a century. The current campaign at the Richland Academy of the Arts continues that tradition and ensures that we will continue to cultivate the culture and talent of the next generation of students," noted Mansfield Mayor Jodie Perry.

Building on a Legacy of Creativity

Founded in 1991 by Marianne Cooper, Richland Academy has grown into a regional center for arts education, offering instruction in music, dance, theater, visual arts and martial arts (Kenpo).

Longtime board member Joann Hipsher emphasized the importance of Mansfield's thriving arts community while highlighting the Academy's unique role in providing arts education.

"We are so fortunate Mansfield and the surrounding communities support the Arts," Hipsher said. "What sets Richland Academy apart is the Arts Education component and our extraordinary dance department!"

Hipsher pointed to organizations such as the Mansfield Symphony, Renaissance Theatre, Mansfield Art Center, Mansfield Playhouse and Kingwood Center Gardens as examples of the region's strong commitment to the arts.

Located at 75 N. Walnut St., Mansfield, the academy occupies approximately 47,000 square feet of space within historic downtown buildings, including former commercial properties and the historic Majestic Theatre.

As programming has evolved and participation has grown, the Academy's facilities have required improvements to better accommodate contemporary arts instruction and the needs of students and instructors.

The Empower the Arts campaign, launched in 2024, represents the organization's first major capital campaign in approximately 25 years.

The improvements include reorganizing instructional spaces, expanding studios, modernizing building systems and creating an environment that better supports the Academy's educational mission.

For Benson, the investment reflects the importance of creating spaces that encourage students while positioning the organization for continued growth.

"These are inspiring spaces," Benson said.

Transforming Historic Spaces for Future Generations

The architectural planning process has involved close collaboration with Benson, the Board of Trustees, the arts faculty, and the leadership team to identify needs, evaluate potential designs, and ensure improvements support both current programming and allow for long-term goals.

Helping guide the academy's physical transformation is The Seckel Group Architects, a Mansfield-based architectural firm that has worked with Richland Academy since 1998.

Principal Dan Seckel said the firm's original vision centered on adapting historic downtown storefronts for contemporary educational purposes while contributing to the city's redevelopment.

That commitment to downtown Mansfield has remained consistent even as the Academy's programming and facility needs have changed.

Over the years, spaces originally intended for future expansion were adapted to accommodate new programs. Other areas, including those once used for outdated technology or community schools, have become available for different purposes.

"As times and programs have changed some of the building areas are not well organized to group the programs currently offered," Seckel explained. "The current renovations are designed to bring a logical order."

Early improvements included the installation of a state-of-the-art dance floor and the completion of a new tap studio. The next phase will consolidate the Academy's dance programming on the second floor, creating a more cohesive instructional environment.

According to Seckel, the current improvements will also address space needs for visual arts and martial arts programming, while enhancements to music and theater facilities remain part of the broader vision.

Renovating historic buildings presents unique challenges, particularly when adapting existing structures to accommodate modern educational requirements.

•Empowering the Arts:

Richland Academy Invests in its Future and Downtown Mansfield

"Existing buildings have frameworks of size, structure, systems etc. which become determinants," Seckel said. "Melding programmatic needs with set in place features often requires creative approaches."

Seckel said the relationship between the academy and his firm has been particularly special because of the organization's continued evolution.

"Times change, needs change and Richland Academy continues to prosper and contribute to our community."

Investing in Arts Education and Community Growth

Community leaders have rallied behind the campaign, recognizing the Academy's role in expanding arts education and strengthening cultural opportunities throughout the region.

State Senator Mark Romanchuk emphasized the lasting importance of providing creative opportunities for individuals of all ages.

"Arts education plays an important role in enriching our Richland County community, providing opportunities for people of all ages to explore their creativity through music, dance, theatre, visual arts and more," Romanchuk said.

"The 'Empower the Arts' capital campaign represents an important investment in the Academy's future, helping to modernize its facilities and ensure these opportunities continue to inspire generations to come," he said.

State Representative Marilyn John echoed those sentiments, pointing to Richland County's longstanding appreciation for the performing and visual arts.

"Historically, the arts have been an important part of the fabric of Richland County," John said.

She noted that organizations such as the Mansfield Playhouse, Renaissance Theatre and Mansfield Art Center, along with the former Black Fork Players in Shelby, have provided opportunities for community members to share their talents.

"Education is an important part of this history and Richland Academy of the Arts is at the center. I'm proud to support the arts culture in our community!"

For Richland County Commissioner Tony Vero, the campaign reflects a broader investment in the community's future.

"Strong communities don't happen by accident. They're built through investments in people, education, opportunity, and quality of life," Vero said.

"Richland Academy of the Arts embodies all of those things. The 'Empower the Arts' campaign is an investment in the next generation of artists, performers, and creative thinkers, but more importantly, it's an investment in the future of Richland County."

The Lasting Impact of the Arts

Beyond the physical transformation of the academy's facilities, supporters emphasize the lasting influence arts education can have on personal development, confidence and skills that extend far beyond the classroom or stage.

Richland County Commissioner Cliff Mears draws on nearly three decades of service on the Mansfield Playhouse Board of Trustees, along with his experiences raising two children who were extensively involved in the arts.

Mears said participation in music, theater, dance and visual arts contributes not only to a community's quality of life but also to the personal growth of those involved.

He pointed to the confidence, adaptability and quick thinking required of young performers who must navigate the challenges of appearing before an audience.

Those experiences, he explained, can develop skills that remain valuable throughout adulthood.

Mears has witnessed that impact within his own family. His daughter pursued music professionally and became a music therapist and piano teacher, while his son has applied his theatrical training to his work presenting cases before courtroom juries.

"The arts have enriched my family beyond measure and in the process, have hopefully given audiences something to enjoy," Mears said.

His perspective reflects a central purpose behind the academy's mission: providing opportunities for individuals to develop their creative abilities while building confidence and skills that can influence other areas of their lives.

Strengthening Downtown Mansfield

Richland Academy continues to invest in its downtown location, reinforcing its longstanding commitment to Mansfield's revitalization.

From its early architectural development, the Academy was envisioned as part of a broader effort to bring new activity and purpose to the city's historic buildings.

Rather than moving away from its roots, the organization is adapting those spaces to meet the needs of future generations.

Seckel believes the improvements will continue to provide opportunities for creative talents to develop within the city's urban core.

He hopes the completed renovations will offer "spaces that allow individuals to develop talents they possess for greater self-worth."

That vision extends beyond the walls of the Academy, connecting arts education with the cultural vitality and continued development of downtown Mansfield.

Looking Toward the Future

As the Empower the Arts campaign continues, approximately $1.3 million remains to be raised toward the academy's overall fundraising goal.

The completion of the new tap studio, modernization of the ADA-compliant elevator and renovation of a more secure entrance vestibule represent significant milestones in the Academy's ongoing transformation. Together, these improvements reflect the progress already made while laying the groundwork for expanded instructional opportunities and future facility enhancements.

Hipsher also expressed confidence in the academy's ability to complete its ambitious campaign, despite the remaining fundraising needs.

"We have not reached our financial goal, but we continue to prioritize next steps," she said. "I have no doubt with the leadership of the executive director, continued guidance from a strong board of trustees and our dedicated staff, we will reach our goal."

She also expressed appreciation for the donors who have helped make the improvements possible and encouraged community members to experience the Academy's transformation firsthand.

For Seckel, who has witnessed nearly three decades of the academy's growth and transformation, the importance of the project extends beyond the physical changes.

"Creativity drives a community," he said. "Richland Academy allowing and assisting all ages to develop skills develops an enhanced environment for all of us."

Hipsher expressed appreciation for the donors who have supported the campaign while emphasizing the importance of continued community involvement.

"I'd like to thank everyone that has contributed to the campaign. We still need your help. We are proud of how far we have come," she said.

She also encouraged residents to visit the academy and experience the creativity taking place within its historic downtown walls.

"Next time you are downtown, stop in and see us," Hipsher said. "Tour the facility and witness creativity coming to life!!"

With the continued support of donors, community partners and local leaders, the Academy hopes to build upon its longstanding legacy while creating opportunities for generations of students still to come.

As Benson emphasized, achieving that vision will require a shared commitment from the community.

"We can only achieve this goal by working together!"

Mansfield Christian Coach Jesse Rider reaches 100 wins

By Kris Leiter

The number 100 can have significant meanings depending on the context. In the coaching world, it is quite a landmark notching 100 wins!

Mansfield Christian girls soccer coach Jesse Rider was recently celebrated for his 100th win — a milestone that definitely doesn't happen overnight.

Rider has a long history with the Flames, graduating in 2002 and previously coaching the Mansfield Christian Boys team in 2013, 2016 and 2017.

His road to 100 wins goes back a few moons ago through a compilation of different schools.

"I started in Ontario around 2008. I coached a couple seasons with the boys and the girls during my two years."

He was then the assistant coach at Mansfield Christian from 2004-'08 and 2014-'15. They won the state championship in 2014 and he coached the boys team in 2013 to state runners-up.

Currently in his third year, with the girls soccer team, things are going in a good direction this year.

The Flames are holding their own quite well at 8-7-2, 2-0-1 MBC (first place). The Mid-Buckeye Conference consists of Crestline, Mansfield St. Peters and Central Christian (Kidron, OH).

This includes a huge shutout of 8-0 over Mansfield Senior and a dominating win of 9-1 over the Loudonville Redbirds.

They also made a huge mark in school history by locking up with a 1-1 tie with powerhouse Akron Archbishop Hoban. It was the first time tangling with the Knights. A win on the road made the victory that much sweeter.

The Flames held their own as freshman Bella Rider notched the Flames single but mighty goal in the 1-1 tie. Not bad against a Division III Final Four team.

The Flames roster this year is strong, as 12 of 19 roster players are juniors and seniors. It surely brings a wealth of experience.

Rider says this year, their schedule expands to teams outside of Richland County. He thrives on the new opponents.

"I feel it makes us stronger by playing teams we haven't seen before."

Lucas cross country makes big changes with move to N10

By Kris Leiter

The small but mighty Lucas Cubs cross country team, Division IV, have had some big changes this fall.

The first major change is being a new member of the Northern 10 conference, Eastern Division.

In March 2025, the Lucas School Board accepted an invitation to join the conference. Lucas was previously a member of the Mid-Buckeye Conference from 2013-'25. It also included Central Christian (Kidron, OH), Mansfield Christian and Mansfield St. Peters.

"It's an exciting year because we're into our first year of the N10," said assistant coach Mike Bichsel. "There are a lot of new teams and also some we have seen before such as Clear Fork."

The N10 was formed in 2012 with nine teams and didn't start play until the 2014-'15 school year. Buckeye Central, Bucyrus, Carey, Colonel Crawford, Crestline, Mohawk, Ridgedale, Riverdale and Wynford were founding members.

Riverdale was originally included, but they decided to move to the Blanchard Valley Conference. Upper Sandusky filled that vacancy.

Crestline left after 2014-'15 and Ridgedale dropped out to become independent in football.

In early 2025, other schools joined including Lucas. Hopewell-Loudon, New Riegel, Old Fort, Tiffin Calvert and Willard. There are now 14 schools and two divisions: East and West.

The West division includes Tiffin Calvert Senecas, Carey Blue Devils, Hopewell-Loudon Chieftains, Mohawk Warriors, New Riegel Blue Jackets, Old Fort Stockaders and Upper Sandusky Rams.

The East division consists of Buckeye Central Bucks, Bucyrus Redmen, Colonel Crawford Eagles, Lucas Cubs, Seneca East Tigers, Willard Crimson Flashes and the Wynford Royals.

Another substantial change has been in the coaching ranks. Bichsel, with Lucas since 2022, is sharing the workload with coach Spencer Adams who recently became a parent.

The co-coaching arrangement allows Adams additional time to spend with family.

Bichsel, an alumni of New Philadelphia High School ran cross country for the Quakers. He has brought a wealth of experience to the table.

"I came on board helping Adam's with mile-splits and encouragement. He took me in and has been amazing. He is such a great leader and gives other coaches a chance to learn. He is my mentor and very dedicated to the kids."

Bichsel has two sons that ran for Lucas. Patrick, a 2021 graduate, and Gavin, four years younger.

Patrick coached the middle school team for two years beginning in 2024, but his day job took precedence. Gavin, in his second year at Heidelberg, runs cross country and track.

"We have 11 runners between middle and high school," said Bichsel. "Middle school runs two miles and high school, runs a 5K (3.1 miles)."

"High school has three boys and three girls with two dynamite freshmen, Jasmine Ramey and Peyton Crooks. They ran well in middle school also."

The teams now head into post season with the district race at Galion this weekend. If runners qualify, they will move to regionals the next Saturday.

"The regional race is very competitive and big. It's at Tiffin's Hedges-Boyer Park and if we do well there, that leads to state."

The Ohio High School Athletic Association State Championships will be held at the Fortress Obetz near Columbus on Saturday, Nov. 7. This will be a competition for all four divisions.

Even though the high school teams do not field a full team of five, runners can qualify as individuals to advance through post season.

"Running is an amazing sport and is great conditioning for life. It's one of those sports that you can do all your life."

Letter to the Editor

Two issues are on the ballot.

The first is a renewal of the property tax that expires at the end of 2026. Passage will not increase property taxes. It will continue to collect the same amount that was approved in 2011. The term of the renewal is for five years. No matter the value of your home, this issue will not increase your property taxes.

The second is an earned income tax of 0.75% with a term of 10 years. This will only be collected on wages earned. All retirement income, pensions, social security, etc. are not taxable. An earned income tax will not impact the retirement income of our retired residents on fixed incomes. This earned income tax would represent the first new operating levy for our district since 2011.

I have one additional request for our residents — let's remember the pride we all have in our schools and community.

I believe in our schools. I'm proud of our schools, our staff, and our students. Lexington schools are the reason many people choose to live here. We provide educational leadership and continue to serve the needs of every resident. Certainly, we serve our students and their families. The schools serve our employees as they provide for the needs of every student. And our continued excellence helps maintain property values for us all.

If you have additional questions about the schools and the ballot issues, please reach out to me.

Join me in proudly supporting our schools by voting yes, twice, on Nov. 3. Together we can continue the traditions of leadership that Lexington Schools exemplify. Together we can have a school district we can all be proud of. Together, we are Lexington!

In your service,

Keith Stoner, President, Lexington Board of Education
